Washington, Sept. 17—An incident that keeps bobbing up from time to time, namely an unpublished encounter between Pertinax, French political writer, and President Hoover at the banquet of the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington last April, now has been brought into the Illinois senatorial campaign by former Senator Lewis.

Mr. Lewis charges that the French journalist made an attack on the policy of the United States in the presence of Mr. Hoover and that it was not resented.

Walter M. Harrison, editor of the Daily Oklahoman, who was president of the society and who presided at the dinner, issued a statement Monday night from Oklahoma City in which he said:

"Bad Taste"

"My attention has been called to a speech by former Senator Lewis in which he is quoted as saying that Pertinax came to this country as a visitor and, at a reception in Washington in the presence of the president of the United States, senators, representatives and cabinet officers, attacked the United States as 'too cowardly to assume responsibility in world affairs and being unworthy of international friendship.'

"Mr. Lewis states that this was not resented by the president. Unfortunately the speech which Mr. Hoover made in reply to Pertinax was not made public because of a previous understanding that the president's remarks were to be informal and not for publication.

"In view of the mis-statement which Mr. Lewis has made, it seems to be appropriate that the public should know that on that occasion Mr. Hoover did resent what was said by the foreign speaker and also on a later date an another dinner told American newspaper men that he hoped when they went abroad they would have better taste than to attack the policies of a foreign country in the presence of the chief executive of the nation they were visiting.

"No transcript of the president's speech was taken but I recall definitely that the president abandoned his manuscript and relied with vigor to the remarks of our French guest. Furthermore, I sat through the evening at Mr. Hoover's side and know that he felt Pertinax had gone away out of bounds in his address."

Lewis Misinformed

The speech of Pertinax was made public at the time and it does not reveal any charge that the French writer regarded the United States as "cowardly." His point was rather that the United States was isolated and provincial and was not assuming full responsibility in world af-

Unidentified Man Is Found Hanging Near Painsdale

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 17 (AP)—The lifeless body of an unidentified man believed to be between 40 and 45 years old was found hanging from a tree in a clump of woods near Painsdale here today woods near Painsdale in search of a bird they had shot. The body had apparently been hanging there all summer and was badly decomposed.

Officials called to investigate the case rendered an immediate verdict of suicide. When the rope which was tied around the man's neck was severed, the head separated from the man's body. Burial was held immediately.

JURY BEGINS TO BROADEN SCOPE

Summon Garvin; Police Scandal of Last Winter to Be Probed

Detroit, Sept. 17 (AP)—Although still occupied with testimony regarding the slaying of Radio Announcer Jerry Buckley, the Wayne county grand jury today gave indications of being almost ready to broaden the scope of its investigation.

The first signs of this tendency were noted this morning when Inspector Henry J. Garvin was summoned to the jury's witness room. The calling of Inspector Garvin, who was ambushed and shot by gangsters last Janury, was taken as an indication that the jury was ready to start its investigation of Detrot's police scandal of last winter. Inspector Garvin, however, was excused after waiting in the witness room for three hours. He is expected to be called before the jury later in the week.

Today's witnesses consisted of Detective Lieutenant John Hoffman and other police officers who worked on the Buckley slaying July 23. The jury is believed to have questioned these officers about the apparent breakdown of the department's radio broadcasting system the night of the shooting as well as the evidence which is held against Angelo Livecchi and Ted Pizzino, alleged members of the gang which carried out the slaying. Other witnesses, including several who have testified previously, regarding the Buckley slaying, were waiting in the witness room during the day

The summoning of Inspector Garvin reopened for followers of the local situation the six-months old police scandal which was precipitated by the attack on the officer. The jury already has before it an affidavit by Patrolman Adolph Van Coppenolle, stating that he knew of internal rivalries and animosities in the police department and that Robert A. MacPherson, deputy chief of detectives, had planned to "get" Garvin. These statements of Van Coppenolle resulted in his being brought before the police trial board last winter. Inspector Garvin has said little about the reputed friction in the department but has intimated that he might talk freely once in the grand jury room.

Move to Impeach Governor Long In Louisiana Killed

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 17 (AP)—The lower house of the Louisiana legislature, assembled in special session, late today voted a "nolle prosse" of the 1929 impeachment proceedings against Governor Huey P. Long. The action was not without opposition, some members terming it a "whitewash."

The house of representatives by formal resolution called on the state senate to drop indictments against the governor that have been pending in the senate for more than a year.

The resolution formally abandoning impeachment proceedings was sponsored by Allen J. Ellender of Terrebonne, co-manager of Governor Long's recent sucessful campaign for the United States senate. It was adopted by a vote of 70 to 20.

Tiny Golf Keeps Boys Out Too Late

Tiffin, Ohio, Sept. 17 (AP)—Check up another one for miniature golf—reinstatment of the curfew.

Addiction of parents and children to putting their time away has led to such neglect of school studies that Police Chief Charles J. Mutchler took cognizance of complaints and issued an order today that all children must be off the streets when the fire bells ring at 9:30 p. m. nightly.

BROTHER BOB TAKES BRIDE TO CELEBRATE

SWEEPING VICTORY OVER KOHLER IS A SURPRISE

Milwaukee, Sept. 17 (AP)—The LaFollette brothers made twin conquests today.

Philip LaFollette found himself the Republican nominee for governor of Wisconsin, by a majority of more than 110,000.

Robert M. LaFollette, the senior senator from Wisconsin, was married to his secretary in a quiet ceremony at Madison.

Friends brought to Philip, as he made ready to be best man for his big brother, the news of his sweeping triumph over Governor Walter J. Kohler, the candidate of regular Republicans.

Happy in his victory, he received this afternoon the report that 2,739 precincts out of 2,824 in the election yesterday gave him 371,018 votes compared to 261,486 for Kohler.

Surprise Marriage

Brother Bob, sometimes called the senate's most elegible bachelor, surprised even intimate friends by his marriage to Miss Rachael Wilson Young of Washington. It had been rumored he was to wed, but not until some months from now.

A Washington wedding was planned, but "Phil's" campaign brought the senator back to stump the state. He decided to await the primary's outcome and then to be married. The result was a ceremony at the old LaFollette farm, near Madison, at 11:30 a. m.

For a mother, as well as her sons, the day was a happy one. Belle Case LaFollette, widow of the late senator Robert Marion LaFollette, had seen Bob and Phil establish a precedent in modern politics.

Confident her youngest son would win the state in November by the customary LaFollette and Republican majority, she also had the knowledge that he is one of the youngest nominees for governor of any state. He is 33.

Conceded only a "fighting chance" to win the day before election, LaFollette demonstrated that the fight he waged during the campaign provided the impetus to put him in. Like his father, he had whirled over Wisconsin, jabbing home his points with the gestures of "Fighting Bob."

He took 63 of the 71 counties in the state, carrying away 26

Two Eye Witnesses Fail to Identify Geisking As Slayer

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17 (AP)—Search for the slayers of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, came to a standstill here today when two eye witnesses failed to identify Theodore (Ted) Geisking as the man they saw shoot Lingle in a crowded Chicago subway.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office at Chicago, and Charles Rathbun, Tribune attorney, who brought the witnesses to Louisville, declined to say whether they were convinced Geisking had no connection with the slaying. They said they had not determined upon their next step.

H. A. I. Rosenberg, Geisking's attorney, said however, he was given to understand by authorities that the Lingle murder charge would be dropped. He added that Geisking "in all probability" would return to Indianapolis without extradition to face charges of auto banditry and assisting a felon to escape from jail.

Roche and Rathbun said they were undecided whether to return to Chicago immediately or remain here to continue the investigation.

"White Smoke" Is Fatal to Six Men

New York, Sept. 17 (AP)—"White smoke," a mixture of denatured alcohol and milk, caused the death of seven men in the "Tin Mountains," a colony of tin shacks in Brooklyn, chemical analysis of the mixture indicated today. Three of the men were dead when they were found Saturday. The others died in hospitals.

The tin shacks are used by seamen. Police said the men had purchased a quart of painter's alcohol for 35 cents and mixed it with boiled milk.

BANKERS AWAIT HOOVER'S SPEECH

An important address dealing with business conditions is expected to be delivered by President Hoover, right, when he speaks before the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association at Cleveland at its closing session on October 2. Left, below, is J. R. Kraus, Cleveland banker and chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements; above, John G. Lonsdale, of St. Louis, president of the association, who will introduce Mr. Hoover and preside at the convention, which will be held from September 29 to October 2, with 6000 bankers attending.

River Project Named Hoover Dam in Honor of Engineer-President

Las Vegas, Nevada, Sept. 17 (AP)—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, today inaugurated work on the $165,-000,000 Boulder Dam, and announced the Colorado river project would be known as the Hoover dam in honor of the president.

Announcement of a name to be attached to the huge engineereing attempt was made by Secretary Wilbur after he sledged a spike of Nevada silver into a railroad tie. The railroad will be used to haul material to the dam site.

"I have the honor," he said, "to name this dame after a great engineer, who really started this greatest project of all time—the Hoover Dam."

The ringing blows resounded in the desolate desert seven miles from here as the cabinet member expertly pinned down a ninety pound rail upon the 22 mile branch of the Union Pacific Line.

Great Victory

Officials from six Colorado river basin states—Nevada, California, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Wyoming attended the ceremony.

"This is one of man's greatest victories over nature," Secretary Wilbur said, in his brief dedicatory address. "It is as if our country suddenly had a new state added to it, for a new and wider use of this controlled water will care for millions of people and create billions of wealth.

"Such great projects of engineering, financial and social skill as Panama Canal and this dam are the just pride of our people—greater than victories in war or the harvesting of existing natural products hidden in or grown from the soil.

"Floods, like fire, are the enemies of man but they can be tamed to be his servants. Here we will hold back those floods which could wipe out Imperial Valley and make them give aid instead of concern to its farmers. From here we are to deflect hundreds of millions of gallons of water to the southern California plain, where the water resources of the semi-arid region are strained almost to the danger point."

SENATE COMISH STOPS LAWYER

Request to Present a Statement in Behalf of Ruth Denied

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP)—The senate committee investigating campaign expenditures today denied for the last time a plea of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom of Illinois that he be allowed to present a statement in defense of Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for the United States senate.

With this gesture the committee calculated to purge the remaining hearings of everything pertaining to charges of espionae, wire tapping and desk rifling and to continue strictly along the lines of its main inquiry. This policy was declared yesterday, though the reason advanced then for not hearing Carlstrom was that Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York was not present.

"Having read your statement," said a letter to Carlstrom signed by three members of the committee, "and learning therefrom that the proof you offer concerns actions of persons having no connection whatsoever, now or any other time, with this committee, or any of its employes, the committee deemed it unnecessary and irrevalent to the work it is directed to reform.

"We are prompted to stress as another reason for denying your request the fact that the statement atributed to you by the press as to past activities by the committee is false and misleading."

The signers of the letter were Chairman Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, Senator C. C. Dill of Washington and Senator Wagner. Senator Roscoe Patterson of Missouri did not sign. He also withheld comment on the action of the committee yesterday.

Carlstrom's statement, released to the press, had charged employes of the committee tapped wires and performed other acts of espionage upon Mrs. McCormick, whose expenditures in the April primary are under investigation.

U. S. ENDORSES GOVERNMENTS OF 3 NATIONS

ARGENTINA, BOLIVIA AND PERU ARE RECOGNIZED

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—The United States today extended simultaneous recognition to the provisional governments of Argentina, Bolivia, and Peru, all three recently established by revolutions.

Secretary Stimson, in announcing that this speedy recognition was actuated largely by the "present economic situation," said the action represented no new policy. A study of Latin American relations disclosed, however, that not since 1822 has any such blanket recognition been accorded. At that time five Latin American governments were recognized by act of congress.

"I have deemed it wise to act promptly in this matter," Secretary Stimson said, "in order that in the present economic situation our delay may not embarrass the people of those three friendly countries in re-establishing their normal intercourse with the rest of the world."

Believed to be Stabile

Recognition of the new Argentine regime came just ten days after revolutionary forces under General Joe Francisco Uriburu deposed the government of Hipolito Irigoyen, which admittedly had lacked cordiality toward the United States. It was less than a month behind the successful coup of Colonel Sanchez Cerro in Peru who overthrew the regime of Augusto Leguia, and a little more than two months after the removal of former President Hernando Siles in Bolivia.

Despite the newness of all three governments, however, Secretary Stimson affirmed the confidence of United States officials in their stability.

"In reaching the conclusion to accord recognition to these three governments," he said, "the evidence has satisfied me that these provisional governments are de facto in control of their respective countries and that there is no active resistance to their rule.

"Each of the present governments has also made it clear that it is the intention to fulfill its international obligations and to hold in due course elections to regularize its status."

Frank B. Kellogg Named to World Court At Meeting

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 17 (AP)—With the naming of Frank B. Kellogg, former United States secretary of state to the world Court; temporary disposal of the Briand European federation plan and election of new members to the council, the League of Nations today concluded its spectacular phase and turned to concrete treatment of the international questions in its six standing committees.

Under the presidency of Nicholas Politis of Greece, the third committee which deals with the paramount problem of disarmament began today discussion of a proposal for giving financial assistance to attacked or menaced countries, only outlining the procedure for treating this project for discouraging war.

The fourth committee, whose work lies in the humanitarian and social domain, appointed its reporters preparatory to analyzing the work of the anti-narcotic, and child welfare and traffic in women organizations.

Noah Beery's Wife Returns Back Home

Los Angeles, Sept. 17. (AP)—Mrs. Marguerite Beery, wife of Noah Beery, film actor, who was reported missing since September 8 by her husband, returned to Los Angeles tonight and went to the home of friends.

The actor called police and informed them his wife had telephoned his home during his absence. He requested a police search be launched for her yesterday be discontinued as he believed she would return to his ranch shortly.

Beery also declared he had learned his wife left Las Vegas, Nev., where she was located today, alone and had driven across the desert to Los Angeles by herself.

Appeal to Court Seeking Election To Recall Mayor

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 17 (AP)—Sponsors of the movement to recall Mayor Rudolph G. Tenerowicz, of Hamtramck, appealed to the supreme court today. In the Wayne county circuit court they had been refused an order compelling the calling of an election.

Petitions proposing a recall election were submitted to City Clerk Michael J. Grajewski, but he refused to comply on the ground the petitions contained fraudulent signatures. John W. Karwick and other Hamtramck residents petitioned for a writ to compel Grajewski to call the election. Their petition was denied by Judge Allan Campbell of the Wayne circuit court. They now seek a writ of certiorari authorizing a supreme court review of Judge Campbell's ruling.

BOWLES WON'T FIGHT FOR SEAT

Detroit Mayor Says He Will Abide by Results of Recount

Detroit, Sept. 17. (AP)—Frank Murphy's chances of taking his oath of office as mayor of Detroit within the next ten days were boosted today following Mayor Charles Bowles' announcement that he would abide by the results of the recount now in progress.

A statement from Charles Abbott, the mayor's attorney, indicated yesterday that a protracted legal battle to contest mayor-elect Murphy's title to the office would be waged no matter how the recount resulted. The mayor repudiated this statement today, claiming that Mr. Abbott had spoken without authority.

Slight Gain.

The recount now being made by the city election commission is of the votes cast in the special mayoralty election of Sept. 9 which Murphy won by a plurality of more than 12,000. Reports from the city hall today showed that in 108 of the city's 852 precincts the mayor had a net gain of 327 votes in the recount. This rate of gain, even though maintained for the remaining 744 precincts would fail to appreciably lessen Murphy's lead.

The mayor said today that he had petitioned for the recount because of "apparently dependable information" of irregularities in the election which he felt it his duty to inquire into.

The mayor's statement said in part: "If, however, the recount does not change the final result I have no intention of attempting to hold the mayor's office. What legal course I may take after leaving office is another consideration and although everybody knows that my removal from office was the result of one of the most dishonest disgraceful conspiracies ever attempted against a public officer, I, nevertheless feel that the interests of the city transcend all other considerations and I am going to act accordingly."

Hoodlum Unions Raided by Police

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP)—The offices of ten unions reported to be controlled by hoodlums were raided today by thirty-five policemen with warrants issued by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty who recently decreed a war on labor racketeers.

Filing cabinets and safes were seized in every office and were taken to the criminal courts building for examination. Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller said that if the labor leaders do not open the safes for him he will have them opened by locksmiths, or, if necessary, by dynamite.

Meanwhile, Chicago's 6,000 policemen, armed with vagrancy warrants against twenty-six men named by the crime commission as "public enemies," were seeking their quarry. Late tonight, despite "creditable mention" and extra pay promised policemen arresting any of the twenty-six, none of them had been brought in.

Six Armed Men Loot Lincoln Bank

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 17. (AP)—Six men, armed with pistols and sub-machine guns today looted the Lincoln National Bank of $19,531 in cash and quantity of securities, and escaped. Bank officials would make no estimate of the amount of securities taken, but said that only a minor portion of the bank's supply was missing and that only about one-third of those stolen were negotiable.

FORCE OF 200 CLERKS BEGIN CHECK TODAY

BOTH SIDES URGE THAT WORK BE SPEEDED

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 17 (AP)—With both sides urging speed, a statewide recount to determine the Republican candidate for governor will get under way probably Thursday afternoon.

A formal petition demanding the recount was filed with the state board of canvassers this morning by O. L. Smith, counsel for Alex J. Groesbeck. Wilber M. Brucker defeated Groesbeck by about 5,000 votes in last week's primary election, according to unofficial returns. Immediately Governor Green and members of the board swung into action and made plans for starting the check at once. The governor hopes to have it completed before the Republican state convention is held in Grand Rapids, September 26, as the gubernatorial nominee ordinarily has much to say relative to the selection of convention nominees for secretary of state, auditor general, attorney general and state treasurer. Some members of the board expressed doubt that the count can be finished in so short a time. Smith said the Groesbeck forces also hope the count may be finished prior to the convention.

Employ 200 Clerks

To hasten the work a force of 200 clerks will be employed. They may work night and day. The count of outstate ballots will be made in the huge field house of the boys' vocational school here. Wayne county ballots may be checked in Detroit. Official action setting the recount machinery in motion will be taken by two members of the state board Thursday morning, providing waivers are received from Brucker and Judge Edward J. Jeffries, Groesbeck's opponents. Notice of the recount was to be served on them tonight. This course was agreed upon when Frank D. McKay, state treasurer, and Webster H. Pearce, superintendent of public instruction, and members of the canvassing board met with Smith. John S. Haggerty, secretary of state, and chairman of the board, will not be here until Friday. But the other two members have power to order the recount started.

Ballots from the nearby counties of Ingham, Eaton, Jackson, Calhoun, Barry, Ionia, Clinton, Shiawassee, Livingtson, Washtenaw, Genesee, Gratiot, Saginaw and Montcalm will be here for the recount by Thursday noon.

The Groesbeck petition asked a recount in every county in the state on grounds of alleged errors, fraud, mutilated and improperly marked ballots, mistakes in crediting votes, and so forth. Smith will head Groesbeck's legal forces. Kenneth Stevens, Detroit attorney, and possibly John F. O'Keefe, of Saginaw, will act for Brucker.

Confusion Possible

The recount will be the first complete statewide recount of a primary election in the state's history. Because of this fact officials had little to go in estimating the probable time the count will take. Both Governor Green and Brown, however, believed the work can be finished by a week from Friday, when the party state convention

Powder Building Wrecked by Blast; Several Injured

Everett, Wash., Sept. 17 (AP)—Explosion late today of the dynamite storage plant of the Puget Sound and Alaska Powder company near Mukilteo, south of here, demolished the plant injured several persons and broke windows for miles around. Two night watchmen and a truck driver were missing. A crew of 45 men had quit work a few minutes before the blast and escaped injury.

Fire broke out immediately after the explosion and residents were fearful it would reach 8,000 pounds of nitroglycerine stored nearby. It was believed about 5,000 pounds of dynamite blew up, the cause being unknown.

Those injured in Mukilteo, about one and one half miles from the plant, were struck by falling debris. The town lies at the bottom of a long, sloping hill on which the plant is located. Windows were broken in Everett, seven miles north of the powder works and people eating dinner were knocked from their chairs.

The missing truck driver is Earl Greenwood, 35, who had been working overtime. The names of the missing night watchmen were not learned.

Communication near the plant was cut off as the blast wrecked telephone lines.

FORCE OF 200 CLERKS BEGIN CHECK TODAY

will be held. Brown was instructed to get "plenty of help." If the recount should not be finished when the state convention meets, and the result remained in doubt, confusion might arise. If by that time the recount had progressed to a point where it was a neck and heck race many delegates who wished to support the state ticket backed by the gubernatorial candidate would be in a quandry.

Various estimates of the cost of the recount have been made. Brown thinks it may run to $250,000. The state must bear the expense. The recount will be public, with results announced by precincts or counties. Attorneys for Brucker and Groesbeck have the privilege of arguing over the legality of ballots.

Throw Out Bad Ballots

All ballots not properly initialed by inspectors, multilated or otherwise illegal will be thrown out. Thus the Groesbeck forces pin their hopes upon the contention that outstate election officials were more apt to make mistakes than those in Wayne county. Smith said the Wayne county precinct officers are schooled in their work. If more outstate ballots, in which Brucker got a huge plurality, are faulty, it will be an advantage for Groesbeck. If a greater proportion of mistakes are found in Wayne county it should work to the advantage of Brucker. Ballots in boxes not properly sealed will not be tallied, the canvass vote in those precincts standing.

Smith said the recount is sought not as a technicality to win the nomination, but solely for the purpose of securing an accurate determination of the ballot. In view of the closeness of the vote, the great number of precincts and the evident opportunity for error, Groesbeck managers believe a recount is imperative, he said. An average error of only a little over one vote per precinct would change the result, he pointed out.

fairs, notwithstanding the Kellogg peace pact.

There was also present at the same function Wickham Steed, British publicist, whose address was also made public and in which criticism of American foreign policy was severe. By virtue of the fact that speeches of the two foreign journalists were printed, the public had no knowledge of what the president said or did, and were it not for the statement by former Senator Lewis as to what happened there would not have been anything said about it even at this date because when the president preposes confidence in the newspaper men they do not publish what he says.

In his campaign speech Mr. Lewis sought to bring out that the French government in true nationalistic spirit had resented what William Randolph Hearst had written about France, but when a French writer attacked America's policy in the presence of Mr. Hoover, no resentment was expressed. Unquestionably former Senator Lewis was misinformed about the incident, for on few occasions in recent history has an American president acquitted himself so forcefully as did Mr. Hoover on the occasion to which Mr. Lewis has referred. No stenographic record exists as to what was said, but if it had been printed at the time it would have caused a stir throughout the world.

Police Find Huge Still In Detroit

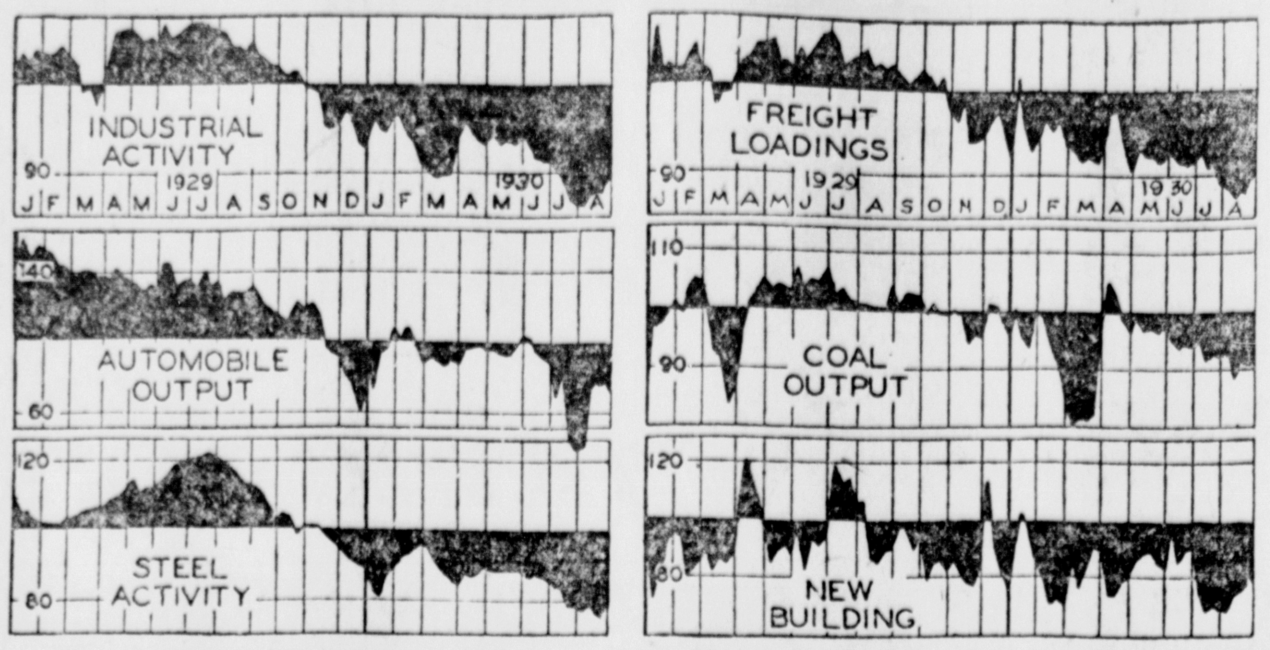
Detroit, Sept. 17. (AP)—Police late tonight raided what they described as the "biggest still ever found in Detroit" since the eighteenth amendment went into effect. They said equipment and liquor seized in the place was valued at $1,000,000.

The distillery was located in an abandoned firehouse at Cass and Amsterdam avenues, near the center of the uptown business district.

As the police detachment crashed its way through a maize of partitions using axes, operators of the place escaped from rear windows, using rope ladders, police said.

The raiders found 80,000 gallons of grain mash in vats and 20,000 gallons of grain alcohol in five-gallon containers ready for shipment. Rooms of the building were crammed to the roof with materials for making alcohol, including 100,000 pounds of raw sugar and 2,000 gallons of molasses.

WORST IS PAST, SAYS BUSINESS EXPERT



Business "appears to be turning the corner and an industrial activity seems to be increasing," according to Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, and one of the country's best-known business experts. Above are some charts just prepared by Colonel Ayres to illustrate his contention. Study the six illustrations and you will see how the bad slump at the end of 1929, partially overcome early this year, was followed by a more severe depression, which at last seems to have hit rock bottom and is now giving indications of being on the way upward. In each case the silhouette represents from month to month the percentages by which the output of the industry in question has risen above its computed long-term normal level, or fallen below it since January 1, 1929.

Murder Charges to Be Filed In Case Prison Guard Dies

Baltimore, Sept. 17 (AP)—Upon the outcome of the wound of Arthur F. Owen, a Maryland penitentiary guard shot late yesterday in a desperate escape attempt, the fate of the nine convicts who took part hung today.

Two years ago two prisoners were hanged for the fatal wounding of a guard, Alfred Walker, in a similar attempt, and officials stated today that should Owen, critically wounded, died, the hanging of the nine would be demanded.

Physicians gave Owen an even chance to recover, although an operation to remove a bullet in his body was unsuccessful.

From his hospital bed Owen today identified the man who shot him as Rawlings V. Whittemore, 26, serving 21 years for robbery.

Whittemore and George Bailey, serving 15 years for robbery, were brought, handcuffed, to face the guard and he unhesitatingly pointed to Whittemore as his assailant.

Primaries Satisfy Democrats and Wets

Washington, Sept. 17. (AP)—Spokesmen for Democratic and anti-prohibition organizations alike expressed satisfaction tonight over the outcome of Tuesday's primaries.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, said "every Democrat has reason to be satisfied."

Henry H. Curran, president of the association against the prohibition amendment, said "yesterday was really a very damp day; the wet tide is still coming in."

Shouse added that with Marcus A. Coolidge and Joseph B. Ely the party candidates for senator and governor in Massachusetts the Democrats had "every right to anticipate a victory" over William M. Butler and Governor Frank G. Allen.

He said he was delighted with the nomination of Thomas F. Bayard as the Democratic candidate for senator in Delaware. He did not comment on the Wisconsin election, explaining that was a "Republican fight."

Ocean Flights Not So Numerous; Two Hops Are Doubtful

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 17 (AP)—A threatened congestion of the trans-Atlantic airways which bade fair to rival that of the early post-Lindbergh era abated today when one ocean flight project was abandoned and the status of another was made doubtful.

Roger Williams, who piloted one plane to Rome and another to Bermuda and back without stopping, and Ted Lundgren, Hollywood aviator, gave up the idea of flying eastward around the world and started, before noon, for Los Angeles.

Just before they set out Williams announced he had a cablegram from Charles A. Levine owner of the plane Columbia, saying Levine had cancelled the projected flight of that plane from Newfoundland to London.

Massachusetts Will Have Wet-Dry Fight

Boston, Sept. 17 (AP)—Massachusetts voters were assured tonight of a clear cut wet and dry fight along party lines in the November general elections.

Republican voters, as a result of yesterday's state primary, had before them a ticket headed by a dry William M. Butler, former United States senator and former chairman of the Republican national committee, as their candidate for United States senator, with a wet, Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg, manufacturer, and former mayor, as his opponent.

For governor, the Republicans had another dry, the present governor, Frank G. Allen as a candidate for re-election with a wet, Joseph B. Ely, of Westfield, opposing him on the Democratic side.

Atlantic Victors Stop At Detroit On Good Will Tour

Detroit, Sept. 17. (AP)—Captain Dieudonne Coste and Lieutenant Maurice Bellonte dropped out of the clouds this afternoon for an overnight visit in Detroit, the city founded by their illustrious fellow countryman, Antoine De La Mothe Cadillac.

Escorted by 18 army airplanes from Selfridge field, the trans-Atlantic fliers in their big red sesquiplane, the Question Mark, settled to earth at the city airport at 4:18 p. m. (EST), two hours and 13 minutes after they took off from Indianapolis. The escort had met them at the Michigan line near Toledo.

Thousands of persons who had waited for hours at the airport cheered wildly as the fliers stepped from their ship. There was a brief welcoming ceremony there, then the visitors were transferred to an automobile for a parade to the city hall.

There, after the official welcome had been spoken by William P. Bradley, president pro tem of the city council, in the absence of Mayor Charles Bowles, the guests of honor spoke through amplifiers to a crowd numbering well into the thousands.

Pro Tennis Tourney In Quarter Finals

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 17 (AP)—Three lawn tennis stars from across the Atlantic and five Americans went into the quarter final round of the fourth annual professional championship singles tournament today.

Karel Kozeluh, the defending champion from Czecho-Slovakia, Roman Najuch of Germany and Dan Maskell, the British title holder carried the banners of the invaders forward and were joined by Vincent Richards, twice holder of the professional crown; Harvey Snodgrass, Pacific coast champion, Howard O. Kimsey of San Francisco, Paul L. Heston of Washington, D. C., and Norval Carig, a young professional from Los Angeles, Cal.

Kozeluh toyed with J. Basil Maguire, Orange, N. J., to gain his place in the final eight, winning three love sets. Maskell and Najuch had hard battles, however, the Briton being forced to four sets before he defeated Edwin J. Faulkner, Philadelphia, 6-2, 6-1, 6-8, 10-8. Najuch lapsed into a streak of inaccuracy against Charles M. Wood, Elmsford, N. Y., but finally won in the regulation three sets, 6-4, 6-4, 9-7.

Nearly $260,000 was collected in a recent one-day charity drive in London.

credited to Kohler in the primary two years ago. Rural and metropolitan Wisconsin alike gave him an over-sized vote.

The governor, a wealthy manufacturer, said he had no regrets at returning to private life. LaFollette, in a formal statement, said that: "I feel the high responsibility which has come to me to carry on the fight for the fundamental principles of Democracy upon which Robert M. LaFollette founded the progressive movement."

He went into seclusion after seeing Brother Bob off on his honeymoon. The senator's destination was not announced.

LEADING CHARACTER

Madison, Wis., Sept. 17 (AP)—The leading character of the state's greatest political family today saw new achievements inscribed on the roll of the LaFollettes of Wisconsin.

She is Belle Case LaFollette, widow of the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette; mother of Robert M., Jr, senator from Wisconsin, and Philip F. LaFollette who yesterday won the Republican nomination for governor.

Cast by choice in a minor role, Mrs. LaFollette has steered another son to victory at the polls without once coming openly into the field of action during the long and strenuous campaign against Governor Walter J. Kohler. Today she has seen Philip nominated to the post his father held for two terms. She already has witnessed husband and son as United States senators.

Preferring always to have the male members of the family serve in public office, Mrs. LaFollette has remained in the background but in reality has constituted the staff of the progressive movement. Her husband, the acknowledged founder, always referred to her as "the counsellor" and freely admitted his wife's faith and foresight enabled him to promulgate "progressivism" and achieve a place in public life.

Six Americans Are Still In Running For Canadian Title

Montreal, Sept. 17 (AP)—Six players from the United States and two Canadians remained in running for the Canadian women's open golf championship at the conclusion of the second round played over the Lavel-Sur-Le-Lac course today.

While not lacking brilliant playing, the day's round was void of any upsets, all eight players standing out in reputation over the remainder of the original field of 76. They are: Miss Helen Hicks, Hewlett, N. Y., the defending champions; Mrs. Harley Higbie, Detroit; Miss Maureen Orcott, New York; Miss Peggy Wattles Buffalo, N. Y.; Miss Edith Quier, Reading, Pa.; Miss Marion Bennett, New Britain, Conn., and the two Canadians, Mrs. Elexa Stirling Fraser of Ottowa and Miss Ada MacKenzie of Toronto.

Illinois Squad Hit by Injuries

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP)—Old man injury sneaked into the University of Illinois football camp today and removed two prominentent backfield candidates from Bob Suppke's plans.

Pete Yanuskus, regarded as a certain bet for a backfield job, suffered a chipped elbow bone and will be out for a week at least. Bill Charle, freshman quarterback last fall, and a promising sophomore candidate suffered a fractured leg in tackling drill. He is not expected to be of much use before the end of the season.

Coach Fritz Crisler put Minnesota's big squad through its first scrimmage, sending a tentative first string outfit against a group of sophomores. A cheery note was sounded when it was learned that Mervin Dillner, a star sophomore possibility, had cleared up scholastic difficulties and will be avaialable. Dillner is regarded as the Gophers' best bet for punting.

Fletcher Takes Two Oaths Of Office

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—At the insistence of its chairman, Henry P. Fletcher, the new tariff commission today took two oaths instead of one in assuming duties of office.

Up to the place where Fletcher took command, the occasion was according to pattern. The tariff employes gathered. The commission marched in with dignity. Everybody stood respectfully while they simultaneously raised their right hands and promised to uphold the constitution and perform the duties of their office. Their commissions were handed to them. They started to sign and their audience began to disperse.

Suddenly, Fletcher spoke.

"Here's another oath to be taken," he said.

L. W. Moore, the notary public administering the oath, looked at what Fletcher had found, and explained it was not customary or necessary to read the second oath.

"I want to take that oath!" insisted Fletcher.

His fellow commissioners, Thomas Walker Page, Dr. John Lee Coulter, Edgar B. Brossard, and Alfred P. Dennis, stood with him and solemnly swore that "neither he nor anyone acting in his behalf has given, transferred, promised, or paid any consideration for, or in the expectation or hope of receiving assistance in securing that appointment."

A sixth member of the committee is yet to be appointed who may, with precedence, take either or two oaths of office.

GALLANT FOX WINS ANOTHER

Champion 3-Year-Old Is Easy Winner at Belmont Park

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Belmont Park, N. Y., Sept. 17 (AP)—In one of the easiest triumphs of his long and brilliant campaign, William Woodward's Gallant Foy, three year old title holder and all time money winning champion sent his total earnings soaring to $328,165 today with a galloping victory in the Jockey gold cup—run over two miles as the closing feature of the Belmont Park meeting.

Only three thoroughbreds paraded to the post for the twelfth running of the gruelling classic and one of the trio was Frisus, an added starter, coupled with the Fox as the Woodward entry. The third starter was A. C. Bostwick's three-year-old Yarn, a speedy maiden but badly outclassed today.

Gallant Fox and Frisus went to the post at the prohibitive odds of one to thirty—the shortest options held against the Fox since he started his parade through the three year old and handicap fields last April in the Wood memorial at Jamaica. The gold cup triumph ran the Woodward's star's string to ten victories in eleven starts.

It also was Gallant Fox's last race on a New York track as he will be retired to stud after fulfilling his engagement in the Latonia championship in Kentucky.

King Flays Higher Tariff In Canada

Ottawa, Sept. 17. (AP)—The increased tariff schedules which went into effect today as a measure to relieve unemployment were attacked in the house of commons by W. L. Mackenzie King, opposition leader and former premier who introduced an amendment declaring they "will not end unemployment."

Mackenzie King charged Premier R. B. Bennett with having "railroaded through" the tariff changes. He criticized the government for having submitted its new schedules without including the existing rates for purposes of comparison.

NEWBERRY BRIEFS

Michael Hoben of St. Ignace was a caller in Newberry on Monday.

After several delays the new refreshment shop on Newberry avenue which William Johnson owns and operates is open for business. There was some trouble with the freezing equipment but a neat and attractive place is now welcoming patronage.

George Newmark leaves the last of the week for Columbus where he is a student in the Ohio State university.

CHEESE OPERATOR MISSING

Through two of the victims who came to Newberry for advice concerning the organization of a cooperative cheese company it has become known that Anton Humecke of Rapninville who has been operating a cheese factory near Engadine for the past several years is missing along with considerable money, the amount being estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000 due to the neighboring farmers for cream checks for the last two weeks of July and all of August. It is reported that the man has been traced to southern Wisconsin, where his trail was lost.

Charles Machinski stands to lose about $373, and Fred Schraeder $320. These two men being among the prime movers of a cooperative concern.

Humecke came to Engadine after the World war in which he had seen service and proceeded to gain the confidence of the farmers, banding them in the cheese organization which has been paying well, according to all reports. It has made around 220,000 pounds of cheese annually and did a business of from $45,000 to $50,000. Even yet there are people in this settlement who believe that Humecke will return with an explanation of his conduct.

LITTLE INTEREST

What ever the state politics may be doing to the peace and quiet of other localities Luce county remains serene if the annual meeting of the county Republican committee is indicative of its mood. Not a rift nor a riffle marked its meeting Tuesday afternoon in the community building and the small number attending indicated the lack of interest of those who might have been expected to show considerable interest.

A. L. Sayles, for the past several years county chairman presided and at once was reelected to continue in that office for the next two years. W. G. Fretz was appointed secretary. Committees on credentials and resolutions were appointed, E. C. Underwood and W. G. Fretz acting on the first and F. P. Bohn, W. J. McMahon and John Quinlan on the last named. Credentials were made for E. C. Underwood, J. T. Turnbull, W. L. McMahon, J. L. Gilnard, A. L. Sayless, L. A. Wyse, H. L. Harris, J. E. Quinlan, L. H. Redmond, W. G. Fretz, Andrew Westin, S. D. Foster and H. E. Perry.

The committee on resolutions ignored the candidates for governor altogether, one of the members afterwards stating that seeing that a recount was on it was not the office of that committee to indorse anyone. Frank D. Fitzgerald for secretary of state, O. B. Fuller as auditor general, Seth Q. Pulver as attorney general and F. P. Bohn as congressman from the 11th congressional district were indorsed.

William L. McMahon and J. T. Turnbull were elected as delegates to the state convention with F. P. Bohn and A. L. Sayles as alternates.

The following will compose the county committee for the next two years:

Chairman—A. L. Sayles.

Secretary—W. G. Fretz.

McMillan township—E. C. Underwood, P. H. Hamilton, S. D. Foster, Mrs. William Garret, Mrs. Anna Autin.

Lakefield—Fred LaFond, Joe Thorley and Mrs. George Roat.

Columbus—Henry Hiedlebricht, Jess Hangar and Mrs. W. S. Locke.

Pentland — John Templeton, Charles Burns and Mrs. John Brown.

At the close of these appointments Congressman F. P. Bohn spoke informally concerning the need of keeping the Republican organization lively in the county.

LOAN FUND COMMITTEE

The first meeting of the Student's Loan Fund committee was held on Tuesday afternoon in the office of Superintendent C. L. Bystrom with all members present. The new names on this year's list are those of L. E. Redmond as president of the Lions Club and Mrs. E. H. Campbell as president of the Study Club. To date the fund has made loans amounting to $1,200 which includes several for this year. A change was made in the rules which limit this assistance to students residing in Luce county. Besides the names the committee consists of C. L. Bystrom, A. L. Newark and Herman Kunert.

Death of Dave Case Reminds Old Timers Of Early Luce Days

BY MARJORIE H. MORRILL

Newberry, Sept. 17—(Special)—The passing of Dave Case in Hancock a short time ago has brought back to the memory of many Newberry people the fact that he lived here for some years and had his share in the colorful life of the then little lumbering community. Case was a drayman and the story in connection with one of his horses is remembered by many of the old timers, among them Matt Surrell and Harry L. Harris.

Louis Cyr, the weight-lifting champion, a French-Canadian, once appeared at a show here, so the story goes. The old opera house was upstairs over the bank. Afterwards it was made into offices and Congressman F. P. Bohn had his offices there until politics and business crowded out his profession of physician. C. D. Zagelmeier and A. L. Sayles now use the rooms that are not used by the Beaulieu furniture store. But at that time, with the exception of a dressing room or so the whole second floor was a large room and the community shows were given there. For a time H. L. Harris was manager of it.

Competes With Horse

Cyr was brought here by the theatre management who decided to arrange a novel stunt or so. Dave Case had a beautiful horse, a dark roan, who weighed about fifteen hundred and would follow him about like a dog. Another drayman, named Hugh Costley, had a fine sorrel about the same weight. It was decided to take the two animals up the stairs and have them on the stage to pull against the strong man.

Of course the stunt caused a lot of talk and betting was all pretty much on the side of the horses. However the French favored their countryman and every Frenchman in the community was on hand to cheer him.

The usual strong man stuff was exhibited, Cyr lifting a table on which twelve husky lumberjacks were standing. Then the horses were led up. Costley had quite a time with his steed,—it wasn't used to climbing stairs and had little mind to try it. But finally, after much effort, it was gotten up. The Case horse walked calmly up behind Dave as though such an event was common occurence. The traces were hooked to Cyr's arms which he crossed and held close to his great chest and at the word the team pulled against him. The Frenchmen, betting on the man, were the winners. Earl "Chap" McGruer was also in that audience and remembers the affair although he was just a lad at the time.

Served As Policeman

Cyr achieved a deal of fame in his day. He served for a time on the Montreal police force. The story was told that the first day of his service for the Canadian city he brought in four men all at once, one under each arm and holding one in each hand as though they were packages. He brought his wife, a small woman, and his two children with him.

Good times were enjoyed in those old times. Rough times, too, by present day standards. For a while shows and programs were given in the old White House where the big dining room was used. One night, having a grudge against one Billie Bolt, who was taking part in the play, the curtain was managed to catch him by the coat tails as it went up, hoisting him half way to the ceiling before the "curtain boy" pretended to discover the "accident". Of course it was all fun for the audience.

"We did lots of things in those days!" Matt Surrell remarked, his still-young eyes twinkling as he remembered. The town was young as were all of the people in it. Adventurers every one, they were and a joke was none the less a joke if someone got hurt a little. And never was anything too much trouble to make a good laugh.

The youth of the village people is indicated when it is remembered that "Old Man Jones" kept a store where the J. K. Jacobson establishment is now located. Old Man Jones was then forty years old!

The correct name of whalebone is baleen and it is not a bone, having none of the properties of bone. It is found attached to the upper jaw of the whale and serves to strain water taken into the whale's mouth.

Circuit Court Term Clears Up Several Cases Wednesday

Several cases were clipped from the criminal calendar in Delta county circuit court, as a result of action taken at the morning session Wednesday.

In the one case which came to trial Wednesday morning, a jury brought in a speedy verdict of guilty in the case of Clarence DeMars, charged with bastardy, and the court fixed the costs to be paid by the defendant at $250. LeMars had no attorney, and testimony in the case was brief. The jury was not less than 10 minutes on the case. The jurors were: Ernest W. Carlsen, Glenn P. Ohman, John Flath, Morgan Rivers, Adam Franklin, Henry Peterson, Francis McCauley, William Petry, C. W. Stoll, Mary Murdock, Robert Rogers and Andrew Hughes.

The case of The People vs. Charles Gregware, also a bastardy charge, was continued by consent on motion of the prosecuting attorney. Jurors were then excused until 1:30 p. m.

Michael Davidovich, 1315 Sheridan road, who previously changed a plea of not guilty to one of guilty in a prohibition violation case, appeared in court again Wednesday morning and reversed his plea in a second charge filed against him, entering a plea of guilty of possession in the second liquor case. He was instructed to appear for sentence Saturday morning.

Alpha Tatrow, Garden, has also entered a plea of guilty in his illicit liquor case. As a result, there will probably be no prohibition cases on trial at this term of circuit court.

SPORTSMANSHIP

THE whole world loves the real sportsman—the man or woman who can take defeat with a smile and will go right back for more. The world loves the fighter—one who fights fair and hard, and makes no excuses if he is beaten.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the internationally known English yachtsman, is a true sportsman of the highest type. When his Shamrock V was beaten in the first of the series of races for the America's cup by the Enterprise, the jovial old man came back to port with a smile brightening his countenance, with no alibis to offer.

We would be willing to place a wager that 90 per cent of the American yachting fans secretly hoped this week that Lipton would finally triumph after his many unsuccessful attempts, even though his victory would remove the treasured trophy from this country.

A FUTURE NEED

WHAT the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce has achieved in the past is highly important, but what is more important is the vast program of civic betterment projects that lies ahead and requires the assistance of this organization to carry out to completion.

This is the main reason, in the opinion of Attorney Torval E. Strom, who addressed an enthusiastic forum dinner meeting Tuesday evening, why Escanaba citizens should re-subscribe their membership to the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce. The Escanaba Chamber of Commerce has demonstrated in the past that it can put over any proposition that is sound and of benefit to the city and general public. Why not make it possible for it to continue its enviable record of achievement?

There have been many civic improvements made in the past, but there always will be more work to do.

The one hundred salesmen, who are conducting the single membership drive, were given their instructions at the forum dinner Tuesday evening. Yesterday, they went hot foot after their prospects and late reports showed that the membership renewal campaign will go over big.

GOING WESTWARD

THE great migration across the plains to the far west ended several decades ago. The empty places are pretty well filled, and most of the homesteaders have become old-timers on the lands of their choosing.

Just the same, it would be a mistake to assume that the country has setled down to a static condition in which change is over. Profound shifts and alterations are taking place now, just as they were in the days when white-topped wagons went creaking west to Oregon; the difference is that now they are not so spectacular.

A recent dispatch from Washington by Kenneth Watson reveals the fact that agriculture is undergoing a very fundamental change of base—a change that is apparently still a part of the great westward migration of the last generation, and which undoubtedly has something to do with the present depression in farm produce prices.

Thus it is revealed that the movement from farm to city still continues. There are fewer farms in the country today than there were five years ago. There were fewer then than there were in 1920. On an avrage, 400,000 farmers a year have been abandoning the struggle.

But a closer examination of the figures is even more interesting. For instance: while the number of farms decreases, there are certain states where it is increasing materially. In Utah, for instance, the number of farms has risen by five per cent in the last five years. In Arizona the increase is nearly 33 per cent. Nebraska and Minnesota show healthy increases. Wyoming shows a gain; so do Nevada and North Dakota.

The decreases, on the other hand, are largely in the east and south. Thus New York state shows a 17 per cent decrease; Ohio, one of 14 per cent; Georgia, one of 17 per cent; Pennsylvania, 14 per cent; New Jersey, 17 per cent; New Hampshire, 27 per cent; Massachusetts, 20 per cent; Connecticut, 22 per cent; South Carolina, 18 per cent; Indiana, 11 per cent.

Dissecting these statistics in this way indicates that what is happening is not simply a country-wide shrinkage in farm areas. It is, in some ways, more like a continuance of the old movement westward. The states showing the biggest decreases are chiefly the states where industrial development has been greatest. The farm belt is contracting, to be sure, but it is also rearranging its boundaries; and this rearrangement may, in the long run, prove more important than the contraction.

MEET DISFAVOR

THE tour of carnivals and other shows of that type the past season seems to have left a disagreeable taste in the mouths of many people of the upper peninsula.

Following the departure of these traveling shows, legislative efforts have been made in several communities to bar them in the future, either by refusing admission on general principles or by placing the permit fee at a prohibitive figure. Upper peninsula newspapers in their editorials appear to reflect the disgust of the general public.

Apparently the upper peninsula this year was plagued with the trash of the show world for in no other year has there been so much resentment stirred up. Dishonest money wheels and other gambling rackets, coupled with cheap, suggestive side shows, carried by some of the carnivals visiting in the upper peninsula this season appear to be the cause of the objections. These activities are certain to make it harder for the carnivals of the higher class type to make a bid for patronage next season.

The city commission of Sault Ste. Marie just this week turned down the Odd Fellows lodge's request for a permit to bring in a carnival as a means of raising money to defray the expenses of a forthcoming convention. Pointing to the objections of such money raising projects, the mayor stated:

"Carnivals are the object of objection by Sault merchants because they take money out of the city. Many people patronize them who cannot afford it rather than spend their money in payment of their honest debts. I am sure that the money can be raised at home for use at home. The Sault merchants, I am sure, will be glad to cooperate with you in your efforts to raise money."

BLOODY BROOK MASSACRE

On September 18, 1675, the Indians under King Philip attacked and cut to pieces a body of 80 men at "Bloody Brook," Deerfield, Mass., in one of the most harrowing massacres of King Philip's War.

Captain Lathrop had been sent with 80 men, the flower of youth of Essex county, to the assistance of towns along the Connecticut river. They were to guard wagons intended to convey wheat, harvested in Deerfield, to Hadley. Just before arriving at Deerfield, near a small stream still known as Bloody Brook, Lathrop fell into ambush, and, after a brave resistance, perished there with all his company.

Captain Mosely, stationed at Deerfield, marched to his assistance, but arrived too late to help him. Deerfield shortly thereafter was abandoned and burned.

King Philip, son of the friendly Massasoit, began war with the whites when he felt they were encroaching on his ground. He chose to fight rather than recede before the advance of the Colonists. Fighting continued throughout Massachusetts for some time after the Deerfield Massacre. The downfall of the Indians began with their defeat at the hands of Captain Turner, at Turners Falls. Soon thereafter King Philip was shot by one of his own men, who had turned against him, and the war was over.

HEART HUNGRY

(By NEA Service) By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

CHAPTER IV.

"Where is she—my mother? Oh, has anything happened?" Celia demanded, her voice rising hysterically.

The doctor held up a warning hand.

"Quiet!" he insisted. Then, eyeing the girl kindly, went on:

"Are you Mrs. Rogers' daughter? She's resting quietly but you must not disturb her! No cause for alarm. Your mother is suffering from a heat attack—brought on, I should say, by exhaustion.

"Can't—can't I just see her?" the girl begged.

"After awhile."

Dr. Williams turned to one of the women who seemed to be in charge of the fitting room. "There's nothing further I can do," he said. "She's comfortable. Let her rest where she is as long as you can. By 5:30 her daughter can take her home. What she needs is rest and quiet for a few days—particularly if this hot weather lasts. Ought to stay home tomorrow by all means. Well, I'll be on my way—"

Celia caught the doctor's arm.

"Please," she begged, "tell me what's happened!"

Patiently Dr. Williams reviewed what he had said. The intense heat had caused Mrs. Rogers to collapse. Emergency measures had been applied with satisfactory results. In half an hour Celia could go into the little rest room where her mother lay and could stay with her providing she promised to be perfectly still and not to talk.

He added instructions for the patient's care that evening.

"Just keep her quiet and comfortable," he said. "She'll probably feel weak for some time. Don't let her worry about anything. Of course she'll have to be very careful to avoid hot sunlight the rest of the summer. Ought not to exert herself in the least during hot weather. You look to me like a pretty good nurse. Take care of her!"

With a smile Dr. Williams departed. He had been called in because his office was just two doors from the dress shop. He had done all that he could for the sick woman. As he strode into the street the doctor shook his head, muttering something unintelligible, and paused to wipe perspiration from his forehead.

The other women who worked with Mrs. Rogers were sympathetic. They tried to comfort the girl and Mrs. Foster, who was really "Margot" and owned the shop, came in to tell Celia her mother should remain home next day.

Finally the half-hour was up. Celia tip-toed down the hallway and peered into the rest room.

Her mother seemed to be sleeping. She looked little and tired and her face was pale as she lay on the low cot. An ice bag covered Margaret Rogers' forehead. Her clothing had been loosened. The breeze from an electric fan swept the room.

Celia crept silently to the only chair and sat down. Her eyes were misted with tears. It was all she could do to keep from kneeling beside the cot and slipping an arm about her mother, begging to be reassured that everything was all right.

It seemed incredible. Celia could not remember when her mother had ever been ill before.

Once Margaret Rogers moved restlessly. Her lips twitched but she did not open her eyes. The slow rise and fall of her chest continued regularly.

The dress shop closed at five o'clock but Mrs. Foster and one of the other women stayed after that. Presently they told Celia that a cab was waiting at the door. They helped her rouse Mrs. Rogers, helped the woman to rise and get ready to go home.

"Celia!" Mrs. Rogers whispered softly. That was all she said until after they got into the cab and Celia had given the driver the address. Then the mother leaned back against her daughter's arm and gave a long sigh.

"So tired," she murmured. "Glad—you're here, darling."

The driver of the taxicab helped Celia take her mother up the two flights of stairs leading to the flat. He volunteered and the girl could scarcely have managed alone. The driver was a thick set, red-faced man who by no chance would ever have been taken for a good Samaritan, but he tipped his hat, mumbled something and hurried off down the stairs as soon as he had received his fare.

Lying on the bed before the open window Margaret Rogers looked up into her daughter's face and managed a wan smile.

"I'm—all right now—dear. See about your dinner--I'm all right."

She refused to be waited upon. Cëlia pushed the windows as high as possible, brought ice wrapped in towels for her mother's head, but nothing the girl could do

THE RICH AND POOR

The rich man's poverty, the poor man's wealth,
Are hope and happiness and love and health.
The rich man's riches and the poor man's dearth
Are things of heaven more than things of earth.

Some men are poor and some are very rich,
Some toil at desks and some within a ditch,
Some dwell in cottages, or castles dwell,
But rich or poor which oné of us can tell?

The world can tell you what his house has cost,
The wage he earned today, the gold he lost,
And yet a man his final coin may spend
And then come home the richer for a friend.

What man shall say what man is rich or poor,
Not knowing all the rich man may endure,
The poor desire? How shall their wealth be known
When each of us cannot compute his own?

Health Tips

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

If the average man looks at bright sunlight, or at the snow, or at intense light from any source he is likely to have his vision blurred at least temporarily. As a preventive of the uncomfortable feeling associated with glare, glasses of various types have been provided by the manufacturers which are to be worn in the presence of intense light.

Recenely the Bureau of Standards has made an investigation of various types of glasses used for this purpose. Dr. W. W. Coblentz has studied many types of glasses over a period of 16 years. "They come and go," he says, "like the styles of hats and dresses."

The scientist is concerned with two factors in the light: One, the general question of the light itself; two, the special question of ultra-violet rays from the light.

Apparently the amount of ultraviolet in ordinary sunlight is not injurious to the normal eye. There are instances, however, in which the eye is especially sensitive to ultraviolet and the irradiation associated with exposure may result in inflammation.

Doctor Coblentz points out that amethyst colored glasses do not seem to have any real advantage over ordinary spectacle glasses. Other glasses are advertised as especially valuable because they cut down the ultraviolet rays, although all of them pass the infrared rays in about the same manner as do ordinary spectacle glasses.

Doctor Coblentz is convinced that none of the glasses thus far available cuts down to any extent the glare or bright light from the usual sources. Indeed, he says, "The cases are few in which it is important to reduce the intensity of average daylight. When near ultraviolet ray lamps and sparks from induction coils, dark glasses should be worn to protect the eyes from ultraviolet radiation."

The sun is not, of course, in direct line of vision and the eye has some protection against it, whereas sources of ultraviolet radiation are in direct line of vision. Because of the danger of ultraviolet to the eye, these rays should be avoided by the wearing of special glasses.

A light is a unit of distance, being the distance which light travels in a solar year. It is about 6,000,000,000,000 miles.

ROCK TYPING CLASS HAS 38

Two Extra Rooms Are Being Added to High School Building

Rock, Mich., Sept. 17 (Special)—A typewriting room and a lunch room are being built in the west side of the basement of the high school building as another part of the extensive construction program of Maple Ridge township schools this summer.

The typewriting room was necessitated by the enrollment of the largest typing class in the history of the school. Thirty-eight students have enrolled in this course and the school board has secured three new machines to accommodate the class. This department of the local school now consists of five typewriters and a dictaphone. This room, although originally meant as a typewriting room, has been so constructed as to be used as a class room, if necessary. It will be ready for use very shortly.

The lunch room has long been needed because of the fact that so many students from other townships carry their dinner with them to school. This room is being made so that it may be used as a dressing room, in case of an emergency.

Another long-desired and much needed thing is the erection of a flag pole in front of the school building. The absence of a flag pole has been very noticeable for a long time and so George Sharkey, president of the school board, donated a 60-foot pole that will be erected directly in front of the school building some time in the near future.

Periodical Pays Tribute To Escanaba Manufacturer

An interesting commentary on the work of C. J. Byrns of Escanaba, president and general manager of the Bird's Eye Veneer company, is carried in the September issue of Hardwood Record, one of the leading publications on wood product manufacture.

The story says:

No man has had a more active and influential part in the popularization of bird's-eye maple as a fine cabinet wood than C. J. Byrns, president and general manager of the Bird's Eye Veneer company at Escanaba, Mich. For this reason and for the reason that his company manufacturers the greater part of the bird's-eye maple consumed throughout the world, Hardwood Record recently approached Mr. Byrns to inquire concerning the early history of this favored cabinet wood.

Wood Needed Sponsor

Bird's-eye maple's introduction and growth to a favored position among cabinet woods is a comparatively recent occurrence. "In fact," said Mr. Byrns, when questioned in this connection, "at the time I assumed the management of our company, now some twelve years ago bird's-eye maple, although in use for many years, was given but little attention among the figured woods of the world. This was largely because the impression prevailed that it was not obtainable in quantities to perpetuate as a permanent factor with other figured forest products.

"My observation convinced me, however," Mr. Byrns continued, "that this beautiful wood lacked only a sponsor having the moral courage to place it prominently and rightfully among the choicest treasures of the forests." This recognizance by Mr. Byrns of the possibilities of bird's-eye maple and his subsequent steps in verifying and developing his ideas have become known as one of the most outstanding examples of keen business judgment and initiative in the hardwood industry.

In response to our questions Mr. Byrns told us something of the scientific investigations he made prior to entering the production of bird's-eye maple. After satisfying himself that the beautiful figure of the wood could not be reproduced artificially, by cunning craftsmen, he entered into a careful investigation of its availability. "I found for example," said Mr. Byrns, "that we had an abundance of bird's-eye maple in stock right here in our own plant but, upon inquiring, was told that there was little or no demand for it in the markets. This condition had apparently been reached due to an erroneous impression on the part of lumbermen and logging operators as to the quantity available and the advisability of segregating bird's-eye maple from plain maple.

Suitable for Cabinet Work

"My investigations had told me, however," Mr. Byrns pursued, "that this variety of maple was in a class by itself from the standpoint of beauty, tensile strength, and closeness of grain. In fact, it had every quality that would appeal to furniture manufacturers, cabinet makers, builders of musical instruments, and ornamental connoissers, particularly if it could be made to take color stains readily that would not fade.

"I immediately resolved that I would persevere in my investigation along this line and would consult with chemists of well known ability and see what could be done in the development of such stains. It took several years to prove that my convictions concerning the possibility of applying color were sound. At this time the several laboratories with which I was working developed a few stains that would meet every requirement with complete satisfaction. Now upwards of forty beautiful shades have been skillfully worked out, giving an unapproached variety of possibilities to this remarkable wood."

It might be mentioned here that it is a well known fact that Mr. Byrns authorized a pretentious financial outlay in the pursuit of these investigations, an outlay which a less courageous and less persevering man would have refused to consider.

Having developed the color stains and having made unmistakable headway in marketing the product, convincing to even the most skeptical, Mr. Byrns turned his attention to the harvesting of the logs and to the perfection of the manufacturing processes, even to the smallest details.

We questioned him concerning the selection and cutting of bird's-ey maple and were told of the skilled foresters who have given a lifetime to the study of this particular wood. "These foresters," said Mr. Byrns, "demand a salary commensurate with the knowledge they have acquired through years of study and service, but their knowledge enables them to select only the choicest individual trees grown in the upper peninsula of Michigan and northern Wisconsin. These trees are logged at just the proper season and special inspectors are always on hand to superintend their cutting into logs, scaling and loading, and the making of shipments to our mills."

At this point Mr. Byrns told us of the multitude of carefully executed operations encompassed in the manufacturing of these logs into veneer—the cutting into lengths by a skilled dragsaw man, the steaming in specially constructed boiling water vats, the cutting out of all waste and injurious foreign matter by educated clipper men, the drying of the stock with the most improved mechanical driers, and the packing and loading by specially trained employes. As we listened we could not but be impressed by the conscientious and detailed care Mr. Byrns has given to every feature of veneer manufacture.

There is both a romance and an example in the story of the development of bird's-eye maple, and C. J. Byrns, who has the most important role in the story, emerges as one of the most far-sighted and able executives in the veneer industry.

Marquette Men Released After 7 Months In Jail

Lynn Menzie of Marquette, who has been confined in the Alger county jail for the past seven months upon a statutory charge, was given an examination yesterday before Circuit Court Commission R. E. O'Brien, and was released from custody, after taking the poor debtor's oath. Attorney Rush Culver of Marquette appeared for Menzie and Prosecuting Attorney Penegor and Poor Commissioner John I. Keeton represented the people. The circuit court commissioner released him under the provisions of the old act, which provided that in such cases a prisoner might be released after six months by taking advantage of the poor debtor's law. A subsequent law provides imprisonment for one year, but in this case it was shown that the crime was committed while the old law was still in effect.

"Perhaps the most vital influence in the American business world in recent years has been the tendency of industrial leaders to join hands with science. No more significant example of this trend exists than your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos. The great success of your experiments demonstrates the wisdom of this union between business and science."

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

LETTER SPURS HUNT FOR GOLD

Mike O'Neill's Lost Gold Vein Sought in Huron Mts.

L'Anse, Mich—A new chapter has been added to the somewhat celebrated story of Mike O'Neill's "lost gold vein," supposed to be located in the Huron Mountain district near here, but whether it will mean the discovery of the vein remains to be seen.

When O'Neill, a veteran lumberjack, died a few years ago from burns received when a lamp exploded in his shack, many of his friends believed that all knowledge of the location of the mine was lost. However, Harry Johnston, a former L'Anse lumber camp cook, has appeared, saying O'Neill and he were bosom pals when they worked together here three decades ago. Writing from Sandusky, Mich., Johnston declares that he accompanied O'Neill on several excursions into the mountains and that he, Johnston, knows the location of the "find."

Trekked West With Lumberjacks

Johnston left L'Anse about 25 years ago, trekking westward with the army of pioneer lumberjacks who were satisfied only when working in the pine forests. He said he read of O'Neill's death in a western paper and asked if reports that a company is being organized to seek the lost vein are true.

If Johnston knows the actual location of the vein it is something entirely new to O'Neill's friends here. They declare that as far as they know O'Neill never revealed the location of the mine to anyone, as he was reluctant to talk about it. Its existence, however, was an accepted fact, as O'Neill was known to hide himself in the mountains for two and three days and return exhibiting some fair sized nuggets.

Refused to Divulge Location

Fellow lumberjacks and others, seeking the location of the mine, often employed various methods in the hope of tricking O'Neill into revealing the location of the mine and even went to the extent of trailing him to the mountains, but the veteran lumberjack always managed to keep his discovery to himself.

Since O'Neill's death there has never been an organized attempt to locate the mine, although previously O'Neill was approached on several occasions with promises of financial backing to operate the mine if he revealed its location. This was the sort of help O'Neill had hoped for, but it never materialized, as his prospective backers became discouraged when he would insist in withholding the location of the mine.

Samples Showed Paying Content

At one time O'Neill had samples of the ore assayed at the Michigan college of mining and technology at Houghton and according to reports the specimens show content of paying value.

Johnston's letter is the second instance coming to light of O'Neill having confided in others concerning the whereabouts of his find. J. E. O'Neill of Hancock, a cousin of the late woodsman, had been importuned by the latter to have the samples assayed and to help finance further prospecting. In return for these favors the lumberjack furnished his backer with a description, which was supposed to be the exact location of the vein, but when search was made later for the papers they could not be found.

ISABELLA NEWS

Isabella.—Mrs. James Nepper returned early in the week from Bonifas, Mich., where she had been visiting relatives. She had also visited friends in Ashland and Winegar, Wis., and Ironwood, Mich., being away from her home about four weeks. Accompanying her from Bonifas was her daughter, Mrs. Augusta Pepin, husband and two children.

Mr. Nepper had expected the party to arrive a day or two earlier and rejoicing at their coming proceeded to make elaborate preparations for the occasion. These included killing and dressing four nice chickens. He hired extra help to cook them and also prepare nearly a bushel of potatoes and other accessories to a real meal. Then came a long distance phone call with the information that the party would not arrive until later.

OLDEN TIMES

Politics Were Taken Very Seriously in 70's

Politics were taken seriously in Escanaba back sixty years ago, and the editor of the weekly paper had his troubles with subscribers if he dared to take a stand, not in agreement with their convictions, it is disclosed in a copy of the Escanaba Tribune, published March 19, 1870.

The editor of the Tribune was E. P. Lott, who was one of the leading figures in county politics at the time, holding the offices of county clerk, register of deeds and notary public.

Of special interest in the edition of the Tribune aforementioned is a letter from an irate subscriber, apparently a Democrat, who requests that Editor Lott discontinue his subscription and advertisement. Efforts to boycott the newspaper are also disclosed. The subscriber also gives vent to his resentment against other members of the political faction, of which Lott belonged, some of them the leading citizens in Escanaba's early history.

The communication appeared as follows:

"Editor, Tribune:

"Be good enough, sir, to discontinue your paper heretofore sent to my address, and also my advertisement—Your course during the three short months of your existence has, I think, fully demonstrated the fact that you are in direct conflict with the best interests of the political party of which I am a member, and I refuse to support your paper for some of the following reasons:

"1st. You have shown a readiness which surprises us to prosecute two of our prominent men, one of them high in position, for the small matter, of attempting to play an innocent joke on the county, by making believe they were going to get the money on a certain county order. Your course in this matter alone evinces a desire on your part to persecute us. You should learn to take a joke of this kind without getting your back up.

"As you drink nothing but water, and are a member of the I. O. G. T. and are in favor of prosecuting our citizens for selling whiskey to Indians we believe you to be a dangerous man, and that our several bases of supplies, may suffer at your hands, if we fail to kick in the traces and show our—ears. I admit that you have as yet given no proof that your intentions towards said supply departments are not honorable, but we can't trust you after knowing you to be guilty as above and below mentioned.

"You further disgusted us by consenting in consideration of a little filthy lucre, to print for our opponents at the late municipal election some tickets, and that without even letting us see these before they left your hands, or informed us in the least what they were up to. Your assertion that you were requested by the persons ordering them to show them to no one is no excuse and will not be accepted. We had a committee whose duty it was to watch such things and one of that committee was at your printing office most of the time, and he tried to see those tickets but was not successful.

"Again we don't know how you voted, but from the fact that you remained in your office attending to business all day, and were not seen to "smile," only when some of your partisans challenged some of our voters, thus depriving us of their votes and losing us the victory, we judge you went back on us, and we therefore refuse to take your paper. We shall also hereafter get our tickets from a more congenial quarter. You are not the only one we have determined to visit our vengeance upon. That little Dutch barber, who was ready to discover that duplicate county orders were presented to him for payment and who had not discretion enough to keep the matter quiet, and also who voted against us—will receive that punishment he so richly merits, viz. the withdrawal of our custom. A number of us have pledged ourselves not to shave at his shop in the future. His assertion that most of our number are owing him, I don't believe true. I suppose you will say that we will have to patronize the darkey then, and that the Dmocratic party don't love them but we don't care.

"We have now succeeded in inducing seven men to stop their papers, and think you must see by this time that we are bound to speedily crush your paper out of existence.

"We mean to control the elections hereafter, and then if we wish to play a joke occasionally, we expect to have some one in the treasurer's and other offices who will mind their own business and let ours alone.

"We warn Dr. Bellow that he had beter go slow. At our indignation meetings held the three succeeding nights after our late defeat, resolutions were adopted to cut loose from him and no longer pay him one dollar a week.

"The statement that your friends have subscribed for more than double the number of papers we have stopped, and will give them to the poor of Escanaba is unlikely, because all who are too poor to take your paper belong to our party and can't read, and wouldn't read your dirty paper if they could so we have the advantage of you there."

Indian Problem

Sault Ste. Marie—Claiming that the American Indian is a liability and that the worst enemy the Indian ever knew is the white man's rum, Dr. E. A. Bates, Cornell university ethnologist and authority on Indians, speaking before the Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Ojibway at noon today, laid down a stirring challenge and appealed that the Indians be taught to be good Indians and not poor white men.

He recited the history of the Michigan Indians, ending his historical sketch with the statement that there are about 8,500 Indians in the state who are more than half Indian blood and about 14,000 of at least quarter blood. They represent the oldest social problem in the state, he declared.

The accident occurred while Tomish was drilling a set of holes in the back of a sub just above the level. The vibration of the drill is believed to have loosened the overhead piece, which weighed two tons. Tomish is believed to have been dead before assistance could be given him.

Whistle Will Toot

Menominee—By a vote of 7 to 6 the city council Monday night turned down a proposal which would have eliminated the sounding of locomotive whistles in Menominee except in cases of "imminent danger." The judiciary committee, to whom the matter was referred, recommended adoption of the ordinance. The council, however, voted against it.

WORK STARTED ON NEW ROAD

L'Anse Firm Excavating Between Whitedale and Port Inland

Peterson Bros., of L'Anse, who recently were awarded the contract for the construction of the 8.2 mile stretch of gravel road between Whitedale and Port Inland have been working on the road for the past week using road building equipment valued at approximately $80,000. Officials of the firm hope to complete the road this fall if weather conditions permit.

Twenty-five hundred cubic yards of dirt are being removed daily with 200,000 cubic yards of excavation being necessary for the completion of the project. Considerable cutting down and filling in will have to be done.

The new road intersects the old at only a few points, many of the turns being eliminated. The completion of this highway means that employes of the Inland Lime and Stone company will be enabled to live in Manistique and easily make the trip to and from Port Inland daily.

Irigoyen Advises Friends to Accept New Uriburu Gov't

Buenos Aires, Sept. 16 (AP)—Ex-President Hipolito Irigoyen, through his nephew, Luis Rodriguez, today appealed to his party adherents to accept the new provisional government of President Jose Francisco Uriburu.

The former president, who was overthrown early in the month by Uriburu and his followers, now is a prisoner on the cruiser Belgrano anchored in the River Plata.

After a conference with Irigoyen, Rodriguez informed leaders of the Radical party that his uncle would regard as "a veritable crime" any act of sedition against the existing regime.

Announcement of the deposed president's views was made shortly after the Uriburu government published a charge that firearms and ammunition have been distributed among Irigoyenista with the object of being used in violent opposition to the army and navy now controlling the country.

Youth Takes Skates from Cookson-Leroy

In a successful effort to obtain a new pair of roller skates, eleven year old Robert Daugherty who has been causing local and state authorities considerable concern during the past six months because of his kleptomaniacal tendencies, smashed his way into the Cookson-Leroy hardware store early Monday evening.

Entrance was gained when young Dauherty using a pair of old roller skates, shattered a basement window on the Cedar street side of the store, opened a trap door leading into the workshop, and pried loose a staple, which locked the sliding door leading into the store, with a pipe wrench. The theft was committed between six-thirty and seven o'clock Tuesday evening. Officers suspected the youth when they found his discarded pair of skates in front of the basement window.

After committing several robberies here last spring, the youth was sent to the Starr-Commonwealth school for boys near Albion, Mich. School authorities there could do nothing with him and he was sent back to this city. Late this summer Daugherty had his tonsils removed at the Ann Arbor hospital and upon his return was put in the care of Mrs. John Burdette, 135 East Elk street His behavior up to this time has been exceptionally good and he is enrolled in the local public schools.

Bogus Check Cashed Here Monday Night

Using a check from a local bank and a rubber stamp indicating that it had been issued by the John Costello Grocery and payable to E. Brown, a stranger driving an old Nash car drove into the P. J. McNamara gas station on the corner of Oak and Maple streets Monday evening and cashed the bogus paper for a sum of $18.50. The amount was written in with protectograph.

As the license number of the car was not obtained, local police are working on slim clues. Officials believe, however, that the man was an old hand at the game.

Farm Price Level Lowest Since 1916

Washington, Sept. 16. (AP)—The general level of farm prices during the month ending August 15 was described today by the department of agriculture as the lowest since 1916.

Suffering a further decline from the sharp break during the preceding month, the index dropped 3 per cent to reach 108 on August 15, compared with 111 on July 15, 123 on June 15 and 143 a year ago.

Early in 1916, when farm prices began their war climb the index was at 100. The index of 108 on August 15 was 2 per cent below the lowest level reached in 1921, when a low level was established for the post war period.

UNCLE FRANK

Veteran at MSC Gets Daily Chuckle Out of Past Events

East Lansing, Mich., (AP)—Seated at his desk in a building bearing the name of his family is a venerable servant of Michigan State College who gets a daily chuckle out of life by lifting the veil of the past and re-acquainting himself with the happenings of a forgotten era.

Dr. Frank D. Kedzie at the age of 73, however, does not live all in the past—he still is one of the most valuable men on the faculty. He is president emeritus, college historian and former professor of chemistry. As his tall frame saunters over the campus, the thought comes to many that when he no longer serves the college ,it will be difficult for any man to be his successor.

Knows Old Alumni.

"Uncle Frank," as he is known to students and alumni, has something of a corner on college lore and the traditions of the East Lansing institution. He enjoys thumbing records of half a century ago, or eyeing some trinket whose significance only he can estimate. Alumni find him gracious. He knows all the "old boys."

Dr. Kedzie is the first, and up to the present time, the only member of the college staff whose family name has been given to a campus building. The chemistry building was named for the late Dr. R. C. Kedzie, his father, who for many years was head of the chemistry department. By far a more important distinction, however, is that Dr. Kedzie is the only man who has spent virtually his entire life on the campus. He has been making daily trips to the college since he was 6 years old.

Rare Memories.

Dr. Kedzie was born in Vermontville, Mich., in 1857, was graduated from the college—then the Michigan Agricultural College—in 1877 and was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of science by the same institution in 1912. In 1880 he joined the faculty as instructor in chemistry and later succeeded his father as head of the department.

In 1915 the state board of agriculture made him acting president, and appointed him president the following year. He served until 1921 when he was made dean of the applied science division. In 1927 he was appointed college historian. The first year of his presidency was one of the most trying in the entire history of the institution. The engineering plant of the college was destroyed by fire, but it was reconstructed by Dr. Kedzie on a larger basis than before.

The amount of information that Dr. Kedzie has collected regarding early-day student life amazes his hearers. His collection contains the rare human interest element most often buried by college historians. His office is the recognized clearing house of information on the institution. Dr. Kedzie doesn't tell all he knows, but he can entertain anyone with a recitation of current and past college history.

could keep the room from feeling like a bake oven.

After Mrs. Rogers closed her eyes and seemed to doze Celia went into the living room. She sank into a chair, fanning herself with a folded newspaper. She was hot, tired and still frightened. The early afternoon seemed years away.

Presently she arose, found cold food and nibbled at it. She had no appetite and soon cleared away the dishes.

At eight o'clock she heard footsteps on the stairs and knew they were Barney Shields'. Celia hurried into the hall to meet him.

Barney's bright smile flashed at her as he reached the top of the stairs. Immediately he saw something was wrong.

"Oh, Barney," the girl said in a low voice, "I'm glad you've come. It's—I've been so frightened!"

The youth was beside her, his face as grave as hers now.

"What's happened?" he asked. "What's the matter?"

Celia told him. They stood in the hallway talking in whispers so as not to disturb the woman in the bedroom. Celia's words came in a flood, interrupted once or twice when tears got the better of her. Emotion, held in check for hours, suddenly gave way.

Barney tried to comfort her.

"But, honey, don't cry! Everything'll be all right tomorrow. I'm sure it will. Gosh, on a hot day like this anyone's liable to go to pieces!"

"Oh, but—I don't know—!"

He slipped an arm around the girl and patted her shoulder.

"Your mother'll feel better in the morning," he said reassuringly. "I'm sure of it."

It was good to confide in Barney. He seemed so protective. It was wonderful, too, to see the same tender, worshipful look in his eyes they had held last night.

Celia, remembering, brushed a hand across her misty lashes and smiled back at him.

"That's the girl" said Barney. "Well, I suppose you don't want me around here any longer!"

She would like to have him stay, Celia admitted, but it probably was best for him to go.

For a moment Barney Shields held her close, touching her lips with a quick kiss. Then he let her go.

"'Night, dear," he said, and disappeared down the steps.

Celia Rogers had gone into Margaret's dress shop that eventful day with exciting news. It was afternoon of the following day before she confided this news to her mother.

True to Barney's prediction, Mrs. Rogers awoke the next morning to pronounce herself rested and entirely recovered from the collapse. A pale face belied these words and Celia insisted on keeping her mother in bed, bringing her food that was tempting and nourishing and generally indulging her.

"But how," Margaret Rogers asked shortly after lunch, "did you happen to drop in at the shop yesterday?"

Celia remembered the doctor said there should be no shocks and no excitement. She was cautious.

"Well, I wanted to see you."

"Wanted to see me about what?"

"I wanted to tell you something. It was—well, I know where I can get a job."

"Celia! What kind of a job?" Why didn't you tell me?"

It had really been the most marvelous luck. Celia's eyes grew wide as she talked. It had all happened so suddenly. She had been on her way to see a prospective employer the day before when she met Sally Roberts on the street. Sally had finished Western the year before and stopped to ask what Celia was doing. As soon as she heard Celia was looking for a job she volunteered to help.

Sally was one of the stenographers in the office of the Ridgeway Contracting company. One of the other girls in the office was leaving to be married in 10 days. No one else had been hired yet to take her place.

"Well—I went right over to see Mr. Porter—he's the man in charge—and Sally told him I had a good record in school. Mr. Porter talked to me a while and then he asked me to take some dictation. Thank goodness, I got it right! After that he said I could have the job. Isn't it wonderful? I'm to get $20 and begin work a week from next Monday!"

Mrs. Rogers agreed that it was wonderful. Her strength seemed to rally with Celia's enthusiasm. Later in the afternoon she insisted upon dressing and even went downstairs for a stroll in the cool of the evening.

"Our luck's changed!" Celia sang out as she was undressing for bed. "You're well again and I have a job and—oh, I feel so happy!"

Barney Shields' name had been on the tip of her tongue when she cut her words short. Celia was not quite ready to tell even her mother about Barney.

Next morning Margaret Rogers insisted upon returning to work at the dress shop. She refused to listen to her daughter's cautions and departed at the usual hour. She went again the next day and the next.

But on that third day, unknown to any of her co-workers, Margaret Rogers visited a doctor's office. The physician gave his ultimatum bluntly.

Pitman, Dry Leader, Favors Referendum On Prohibition Law

Ypsilanti, Mich., Sept. 16 (AP)—Dr. M. S. Pitman of the faculty of Michigan State Normal college, a leader among "dry" Democrats of Michigan, said today that he favors a referendum on prohibition.

Dr. Pittman's statement was included in a declaration of his intention to continue his fight on the wet elements of his party at the state convention to be held at St. Joseph on Saturday when a platform will be adopted and candidates for minor state offices chosen.

The educator previously opposed submission of a referendum. He engaged in a bitter tilt with wet leaders in a pre-primary convention at Jackson when efforts were made to place the party on record as opposing prohibition.

"The cure for our liquor ills is not repeal of our constitution and our laws dealing with the subject," said Dr. Pittman. "The cure is for respectable citizens to obey the laws and for others to be punished because they do not.

Businessman Scares Robbers at Work

Port Huron, Mich. Sept. 16. (AP)—A business man armed with a shotgun frightened away five armed robbers early this morning after they had rifled a number of safe deposit boxes and were attempting to blast open the vault in the private bank of C. C. Peck and Co. at Smith's Creek, 15 miles west of here.

The business man, Raymond Matecki, exchanged shots with the robbers as they fled and believes he wounded one. They escaped in an automobile.

A check is in progress to determine the value of the securities taken from the deposit boxes.

The robbers had drilled through the outer and inner doors of the vault and were preparing to use an explosive when Matecki surprised them.

Dry Pulp Unloaded Here from Ocean Going Steamship

One thousand tons of dry ground pulp consigned to the Escanaba Paper company at Groos was unloaded at the Soo Line docks early this week from the English steamer "Elfstone." The shipment was from Clarke City, Quebec, and was the major part of the original cargo, 500 tons of which was unloaded at Manistique enroute.

Eighteen hours was required to unload the cargo at this port. The craft required a little over ten days to make the trip from Clarke City. The "Elfstone" is a giant craft, owned by the Crete Shipping company of London, England. After the close of traffic on the Great Lakes it will cross the Atlantic to England where during the winter months it plys along the coast as a collier.

RIALTO

At the Rialto Theatre, Warner Bros. present George Arliss in "Disraeli." Directed by Al Green. Adapted to screen by Julian Josephson. Supporting cast includes Florence Arliss, Joan Bennett, Anthony Bushell, Ivan Simpson, David Torrence and Doris Lloyd.

We doubt whether there will be another picture this season or many seasons to come that will equal "Disraeli," the screen version of the famous stage play, produced by Warner Brothers with George Arliss in the leading role. Mr. Arliss is a great actor. There is a power and subtlety to his interpretations that is amazing. To watch him in the role of Disraeli, the remarkable statesman who became Prime Minister of England, is to know the thrill of witnessing something that is powerfully dramatic.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY,
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Sept. 17. (AP)—The financial markets made laborious improvement today. Stock prices averaged less than a point higher in the second smallest turnover for the year, 1,188,580 shares. High grade bonds, especially railroad obligations, showed moderate strength.

Shares worked upward in extremely quiet trading until the late dealings when some profit taking cut into the advances of a point or more in the market leaders. Utilities received the bulk of what buying activity there was and the day's best gains developed in that group. Railroad and motion picture shares were heavy. Industrials listlessly followed the upward trend, although U. S. Steel yielded all but an eighth of its extreme gain of more than a point.

Encouraging News.

One of the most encouraging developments was the appearance of evidence that prices for two of the basic commodities, steel and copper, had reached such low levels that important consumers were changing, or were about to change, their hand to mouth buying policies. Western Electric, American Telephone's manufacturing subsidiary, announced it had been buying copper for six weeks and had accumulated enough to carry the Bell system through the remainder of the year. The company, which is also an important consumer of the silk, lead and rubber markets, is understood to have saved about 15 per cent as a result of the weakness of commodities this year.

The iron and steel reviews, although putting operations about on a parity with recent ratios, reported that large users of steel apparently believed prices had reached bottom and, in the words of "Iron Age," were now willing to "contract ahead." This publication said several consumers had covered their requirements for the balance of 1930 and that a few had purchased for the first half of 1931. In this connection "Steel" stated: "Many discern in the price situation, which is spotty and somewhat contradictory, a slow accretion of strength."

Routine business indices disclosed a reduction of 127,867 cars in freight loadings for the week ended September 6 over the preceding week, a decrease that was somewhat more than seasonal even in view of the fact that the period covered by the report included Labor Day. The petroleum industry, on the other hand, continued to report progress, showing drops in both reserve stocks of gasoline and crude oil production. General Motors August deliveries to consumers was about 6,000 units larger than the July total, but sharply below those for the same month a year ago.

Money Supply Abundant.

Money was in abundant supply and the call rate renewed at 2 per cent for the first time in a fortnight, the Treasury's large overdrafts at the Federal Reserve Banks was understood to have been virtually liquidated.

Neither of the professional factions in the stock market appeared to be much interested in the movement of prices. There were reports that the shorts, who did little or no covering, were awaiting the reaction to third quarter earnings statements before testing quotations further, while the bull crowd seemed satisfied with the general firmness and tried only half-heartedly to attract a following.

Paramount carried most of a 2 point loss through to the finish.

Gillette and Autostrop were heavy, yielding a couple of points. National Biscuit, whose directors authorized an extra dividend of 50 cents, closed ¾ higher.

In the rail group, Louisville & Nashville, Northern Pacific, Southern Railway and Atchison sold off around a point, although scattering recoveries were made from the lows. Baltimore & Ohio firmed on the declaration of the regular dividend. Atlantic Coast Line, off 2 points, sold at the lowest price since 1924. Cotton finished one point lower to 5 higher.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Far eastern rates improved with a rise in the price of silver.

NEW MICHIGAN CORPORATIONS.

Automatic Baseball Corporation, Charlotte, $25,000; maintain and promote the Ropp Baseball machines.

Sanivac Sales company of Michigan, Pontiac, 1,000 shares no par value; manufacture and sell cleaning devices and attachments.

New York, Sept. 17. (AP)—With a large volume of funds seeking employment, demand for railroad bond issues broadened today and carried many to the best prices of the year. Buying was brisk in the final hour, and the volume of business for the session approximated $8,939,000.

Some of the utilities, particularly communications felt the impetus of the vigorous buying. United States governments made some headway on a large turnover. Changes in the foreign list were mixed. Argentine issues rallied more than a point each on announcement that the provisional government had been recognized by the United States. German issues with the exception of the Dawes 7s lost ground, reflecting uncertainty over the outcome of the recent election.

Call Money Reduced.

Both the highest grade railroad obligations and those that rank slightly below the legal class participated in the advance, as buyers were encouraged by the reduction of the call money renewal rate to 2 per cent.

A broad demand developed for American and Foreign Power 5s, and American Telephone 5s of 1965, the latter climbing to 107½, a new 1930 high price. Federal Light and Traction debenture 6s slumped more than 2 points.

In the industrial section oil issues were well bought. Texas corporation 5s were very active. Shell Union Pipe Line 5s reached a new high. Lackawanna Steel 5s made a new peak. Cespedes Sugar 7½s dropped 10 points, and with Container Corporation 5s, were among the industrials at new lows.

Stock privilege issues were firm, and Philadelphia Coal and Iron 6s and Warner Brothers 6s made good gains.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Fresh upturns in wheat values today went hand in hand with further curtailment of the harvest movement both in Canada and the United States. Canadian country marketings for 24 hours amounted to but 2,447,000 bushels against 3,834,000 bushels a year ago, with Minneapolis and Duluth receiving only 560 cars again 934 cars at this time last year. Meanwhile, domestic milling centers reported new flour business averaging up to capacity or better, and flour buyers less fortified than usual at this time in regard to purchasing.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1c higher. Corn closed ½ to 1 3-4c. up, oats 1-8 to 7-8c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

Scarcity of future delivery offerings formed an outstanding feature in the Chicago wheat market today, especially during the late dealings when prices reached their highest level.

Spread trading between Winnipeg and Chicago did much to bring about the late bulge in Chicago wheat prices. At one time today, Winnipeg October delivery was 2½c under Chicago September, compared with a premium of about 7c some weeks ago.

Corn and oats traders took thir cue largely from the action of wheat. Frost reports were without market influence, much of the crop being reported officially as now beyond danger.

Provisions advanced on account of scattered buying of lard and despite downturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Dec. 86¼ to 3-8, 88 7-8 to 89; March 89 7-8, 92 3-8; May 93 3-4, 95 3-8. Corn—Sept. (Bids) 91; Dec. 86 7-8 to 87, 89 1-8 to ¼; March 88¼ to 3-8, 90½; May 89 7-8, 92 1-8 to ¼.

Bad weather, a crop insurance expert recently estimates, costs the United States $2,620,000,000 a year.

CURB IS FIRM IN DULL MART

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER,
(Associated Press Financial Writer.)

New York, Sept. 17. (AP)—On a comparatively small volume of business, curb stocks were firm today, and in a few instances, notable improvement was registered to erase former losses. Sales were under recent sessions, approximating 304,100 shares.

After watching stocks skid for two sessions, buyers took charge at the outset and while they maintained a very cautious attitude which gave the market a stagnant appearance at times, they quickly halted impotent efforts to start a new reaction.

A feature was the prominence of some issues which have been more or less dormant recently, such shares as Insull Utility Investment, Eastern States Power B, Southwest Gas Utilities being among the buying favorites, to rally 1 to 2 points. Shorts were principally responsible for the 4 point rise of Missouri Kansas Pipe Line and the 1¼ gain of Technicolor, both stocks being sharply depressed on the reaction which was halted late yesterday.

The utility group was firm, prices holding above the previous close most of the session. Trading was narrow and turnover of the leaders was reduced.

Some of the oils again ignored the main trend. Gulf dropped 1 point, and Vacuum and Standard of Kentucky worked ¼ lower. Imperial Oil of Canada was unusually active and good buying carried it nearly a point higher. Cities Service was dull and firm.

In the industrial division, Deere's 5 point advance and the backsliding of American Hard Rubber 10 points to its low of the year were features.

Cards Beat Robins Again; Cubs Defeat Giants

HIGH DOUBLES TO WIN GAME

Victory Puts St. Louis Full Game Ahead of Brooklyn

BY BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn, Sept. 17 (AP)—A small band of former Missourians left Ebbets Field late this afternoon singing a hastily improvised song, "Little and High," to the tune of "Little Liza Jane." They were celebrating the second straight victory of the St. Louis Cardinals over the Brooklyn Robins, today's triumph being registered by a score of 5 to 3.

The victory placed the Cardinals a full game ahead of the Robins and may prove to be the victory needed to send the Cardinals into the world series for the third time in five years. The expatriated Missourians are trying to root the Cards home. Their work for two days has been good.

If the Cardinals get in the autumn baseball classic they should vote Andy High a double share of the players' profits. High today duplicated his performance of yesterday, doubling as a pinch hitter. Today his hit came in the ninth inning and drove home two runs, while yesterday he doubled in the tenth and sent one run home. One would have been enough today.

Adolfo Luque, veteran Cuban pitcher, worked well on the mound for the losers but tired in the closing innings. He laid the foundation for his defeat by issuing two passes, one in the eighth and one in the ninth. The first was made into the tying run and the second was the winning counter.

Chicago Cardinals Open with Packers

Sturgis, Mich.—The Chicago Cardinals, who have been here for three weeks, will pack their luggage Thursday and entrain for Green Bay, Wis., where they will clash with the Packers, the 1929 national champions, in the opening game of the league schedule.

Three weeks of pre-season work here has put Ernie Nevers' squad in fine shape and the Chicagoans are confident of getting off on the right foot despite the fact Green Bay again has a corking good ball club.

Much Improved Club

The Cardinals look like a much improved ball club. The great line of last year is practically intact. Strength has been added at one end while two new centers have been imported to fill the gap left vacant by O. J. Larson who is coaching at De Paul.

Last year, Nevers was practically the whole show for the Cardinals offensively but it will be a different story this fall as there are many new backs in the fold, including Howard Maple, an all-American quarter at Oregon in 1928. It was Maple who beat New York single handed in one of the greatest gridiron upsets in 1928.

Braves and Cincis Split Doubleheader

Boston, Sept. 17 (AP) — Walter Berger, Braves slugging outfielder, got three home runs here today in a double-header which the Braves and Cincinnati Reds divided. Boston won the first, 6 to 3, and the Reds the nightcap, 6 to 4. The blows brought his total of homers for the season to 37.

Berger got his first homer with one on in the third inning of the first game and his two blows in the second game gave the Braves their four runs. He got one with none on in the sixth and another with two on in the eighth. In addition to this work he drove in two more runs in the first game.

The Braves knocked Frey from the box in the third inning of the first game. In the second game none of the Boston batters annoyed Pitcher Lucas except Berger.

Detroit Defeats Boston Red Sox In Comedy Fracas

Detroit, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Tigers and Red Sox put on a slapstick comedy act today, each team collecting 15 hits as Detroit won by 9 to 7.

Earl Whitehill started for the Tigers and was credited with his sixteenth victory although he allowed 13 hits in six and one third innings. George Uhle relieved him and held Boston to two hits for the rest of the game. Durham, Smith and Kline pitched for the Sox. Five doubles and a homer by Bill Akers were the only extra base hits.

Tom Hughes, rookie outfielder from Des Moines, continued his hitting streak, getting three singles and a walk in four times at the plate. Hughes has collected 16 safe hits in 29 times at bat in the eight games he has played for Detroit.

Mileski Gets Grid Post at St. Mary's

Clarence 'Jeta' Mileski, all U. P. tackle of the 1929 St. Joseph high school football team, has won a place on the first Varsity reserve squad at St. Mary's college, Winona, Minnesota, it was learned here yesterday. Mileski was one of the outstanding linemen in the peninsula last fall and much is expected from him in college circles for the next few years.

HACK'S HOMERS BRING VICTORY

New York's Defeat Puts Them Out of Picture for League Title

New York, Sept. 17 (AP)—Led by Hack Wilson's two tremendous clouts, which brought his season's home run total up to 52, and by Pat Malone's fine pitching. The Chicago Cubs evened their series with the Giants today by winning the second game, 5 to 2. The defeat put the Giants almost hopelessly out of the pennant race, leaving them 5½ games behind the league leading Cardinals with only nine to play, while the Cubs are only a half game behind second-place Brooklyn Robins.

Wilson made his two homers off Tiny Jim Chaplin in the first and third innings and gave the Cubs a safe lead. Cliff Heathcote also hit a homer in the third to complete the Cub scoring. Malone granted the Giants only five hits and was in trouble only in two innings, the first, when he escaped, and the sixth, when the Giants scored both their runs.

Bill Morrell, recently of Shreveport, made his Giant debut in the fourth inning and staged a real battle with Malone for the last six frames. He gave the Cubs only two hits and not a run.

Parochials Hold Final Scrimmage Before Lid-Tilter

The St. Joseph football squad went through their last scrimmage last evening before they open their season with Norway Saturday. Coach Brunelle indicated last night that he will devote the remainder of the week with tapering off sessions which will include a perfection of a pass defense.

In the session yesterday, the new line showed up exceptionally well and the Parochial coach said he does not believe they will falter against the Norway lineup. The gaps at tackle and end have been adequately filled and it is believed the forward wall will play a big part in enabling the speedy backs to get away for neat gains in the season's opener.

In the first game at Escanaba, the St. Joseph team will meet the Escanaba high school eleven. This game scheduled a week from Saturday is dveloping plenty of interest as both teams have new combinations and untried players.

Cards Gain Full Game On Robins

(By The Associated Press)

By defeating Brooklyn's Robins for the second time in succession yesterday, 5 to 3, the St. Louis Cardinals pulled out a full game ahead of the pack in the race for the National League pennant with only ten games to go. The Robins and Cards each have won 84 games, but Brooklyn has two more in the lost column. The Chicago Cubs, holders of third place, climbed up to a point only a half game behind Brooklyn as they defeated the New York Giants, 5 to 2, on Hack Wilson's home run hitting feats. They are 1½ games back of the Cards while they dropped the Giants to 5½ games from first place, an almost hopeless position.

Shamrock Loses Third Straight to Enterprise

GY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Newport, R. I., Sept. 17 (AP)—The crowning touch to the ill-fated challenge of Shamrock V for the America's cup was applied today when her main halyard suddenly parted, the huge mainsale slowly collapsing, and the emerald-green sloop was abruptly eliminated from the third race. She was disabled just when she had buoyed the lingering hopes of her backers and given Enterprise a real sail for the first time.

Out into a choppy sea, that sparkled in the sunlight, with a good 15-knot breeze kicking up the white caps, Shamrock had sailed forth with deseperate determination on every move and line. Grimly the challenger fought and won the starting advantage from Harold S. Vanderbilt's slim defender for the first time. Heeling over as her nose smashed into the waves and straining every sail into the wind, Shamrock was making a gallant come-back and a courageous fight before yielding the advantage skillfully won at the outset.

Canvass Crumples

They had covered approximately five miles on the 15-mile windward beat of today's 30 mile course and were racing bow to bow, no more than 150 yards between them, on the starboard tack, when therere was a sudden fluttering movement of sail at the top of the 168-foot mast. Slowly at first, then with a billowing rush that must have been heartbreaking to those on board, the huge expanse of canvass tumbled to the deck and water's edge.

It was like the last curtain falling on a stage scene poignant with dramatic tragedy. Shamrock was out of the running and the long quest of Sir Thomas Lipton was all but at an end for 1930, if not for all time.

All alone on the course, soon out of sight of her crest-fallen rival and escorted by few boats outside the big coast guard patrol, Enterprise completed the remaining 25 miles of the windward-leeward course to score her third consecutive victory, in hollow style.

All Enterprise now needs is one more triumph to clinch the series and keep the America's cup in the custody of the New York Yacht Club for another indefinite span of time.

The fourth and possibly deciding race will be sailed tomorrow if the weather holds favorably, for Shamrock came in for repairs and it was announced she would be ready to go out again, without taking any extra time.

KIPKE WORKS ON PASS PLAYS

Simrall May Do Much of The Overhead Work This Campaign

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 17 (AP)—Passing and blocking commanded most of the attention of Michigan's gridiron aspirants today as Coach Harry Kipke made an early start of the two phases of the game in which weakness was evident last year.

Most of the morning workout was devoted to perfecting some simple forward pass plays, with Captain Jim Simrall, Jack Wheeler and Estel Tessmer hurling the ball. As the three passers worked the kinks out of their throwing arms, Simrall was displaying the most consistent accuracy. He showed ability at short passes last year and should he succeed in adding distance throwing to his repertoire, his worries of a full-time berth on this year's team probably would be over.

Some Good Receivers

A good passer would work wonders toward making effective Michigan's style of attack. Not only could many yards be picked up by the aerial route, but a passing menace would tend to spread out the defense to the great advantage of the running offense. Norm Daniels, who seems to have an end berth reserved; Charles DeBaker, a sophomore from Muskegon who is said by some to have pass snaring capabilities comparable to those of Oosterbaan; Hewitt, Wheeler, Hudson and Tessmer demonstrated skill at pass receiving.

Emphasis placed during the first three days of practice on blocking has brought to light two sophomores who show promise at the important duty of clearing a way for ball carriers. They are Goldsmith and Cox, who are battling for the fullback position. They are giants in size and, more important, know how best to utilize their bulk.

Pete Cornwell, a reserve end with two seasons experience, has made a quartet of the trio now seeking the center position, left vacant by Bovard's graduation last spring. The other three who previously had been considered competitors for the pivot post are Ivan Smith, Doc Morrison and Bob Morgan. Morrison is temporarily removed from active competition because of a shoulder injury but expects to be back in heavier workout before long.

Pirates Get Hot To Beat Phillies

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP)—Two big innings, the seventh and eighth, in which they scored all their runs, featured the Pittsburgh Pirates 12 to 5 victory over the Phils today. Four Phillies hurlers were routed by the Pirates, while Erwin Brame limited the Phils to 12 scattered hits.

Beside beating the Quakers with his arm, Brame played an important part in the victory with his bat by collecting four hits. Al Phillips, Roy Hansen, Pat Collard and Ray Benge hurled for the loser. This quartet was assaulted for sixteen hits.

Browns Even Series With New York, 9-8

St. Louis, Sept. 17 (AP)—Despite a seven-run rally by the Yankees in the eighth inning, the Browns evened the series with New York today, winning, 9 to 8.

Five pitchers, most of them wild, toiled for the two teams and each set yielded nine hits. Collins was credited with the victory although Blaeholder finished the game for the Browns. Henry Johnson was charged with the defeat. Holloway and McEvoy also pitched for New York. The quintet gave out 17 bases on balls, Collins allowing seven.

Jim Levey, shortstop, and Irving Burns, first gaseman, recently purchased from Wichita Falls, played their first major league game with the Browns and made good impressions. Levey got two hits and Burns one.

ESKYMOS FACE TEST SATURDAY

Puckmen On Short End of Odds in Grid Opener Against Cookmen

Coach William Puckelwartz yesterday afternoon named a green but scrappy lineup to face the kickoff in the opening football game of the season here this Saturday against Manistique. Of the men chosen to be on the starting lineup against the veteran Cook team, only three or four have had any experience under fire.

The lineup chosen by Coach Puckelwartz to open the fracas follows:

C—Vern Wicklander—170

	Pos.	Wht.
W. Lalaeff	LE	129
Russ Loty	LT	169
Leonard Olson	LG	159
Vern Wicklander	C	170
Wm. Schultz	RG	134
George Call	RT	155
Bob Snyder	RE	157
Arnold Masten	QB	131
Baillargeon	LH	146
M. Burns	RH	110
G. Byrns	FB	156

Team average — 144 pounds.
Line average — 153 pounds.
Backfield average—135 pounds.

The Eskymos face one of their most difficult tests of the year in their opener here and, incidentally, for the first time in many seasons, the local squad will go into their lid-lifter on the short end of the odds. Manistique has been favored to win by practically all the critics by virtue of their opening game performance against Cheboygan whom they crushed under a 41-0 avalanche.

But football games as in any other sport are won on the field and not on the dope sheet. Anything is liable to happen. Scrimmage sessions during the week have not thrown any light on the situation and the Puckmen may develop into a powerful aggregation. Manistique is favored only because they are a tried and proven outfit with a galaxy of last year's warriors.

In the preliminary game, the Escanaba Reserves will bump into Rock's Little Giants. This game also promises to provide the spectators with plenty of action.

Seats for the season which are being reserved between the 40-yard lines free of charge are selling rapidly, indicating a marked interest in the games which will be played here this year.

Pep meetings at various grade schools were held yesterday, conducted by members of the High School Athletic Association.

BOXING

Chicago Stadium, Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP)—Primo Carnera knocked out Jack Gross, Philadelphia, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round fight tonight amid a chorus of boos.

Averill Hits Four Homers In One Day

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 17 (AP)—Earl Averill, young Indian centerfielder, stole the show by hitting three home runs in consecutive trips to the plate and a total of four round trippers for the day as Cleveland and Washington split a double-header here today. Cleveland won the first, 13 to 7, and Washington copped the nightcap, 6 to 4.

Averill tied the modern major league record for consecutive homers with three in the first game. He drove in eight runs, enough to win the game. He missed a fourth straight homer on his last trip to the plate when a long fly was foul by a few feet, and then grounded out. On his first time up in the second game, he hit another home run, scoring two runners ahead of him. Next time Averill hit a double, then he was hit by a pitched ball, flied out and walked in other appearances.

COOKMEN DRILL HARD FOR ESKY

Running Plays Stressed; Green & White Team Not Overconfident

Manistique, Spet. 17 (Special)—Running his squad of 38 men through a light hour and one-half workout, Coach William Cook is ironing out the rough spots which appeared in his 1930 grid machine last Friday in preparation for Saturday's game with the Eskimos at Escanaba. Despite the mid-season form displayed by the Cookmen against Cheboygan and the fact that dopesters are giving them the edge in Saturday's tussle, the green and white team will not be overconfident.

Great stress is being laid upon new running formations and the development of the line on offense. Light scrimmages between the first and second teams are forming the major part of the practice sessions. Stiff workouts are on the bill for the latter part of the week.

Manistique may be without the services of Richard Hudson, star end, and Leonard Stoor, fleet halfback, both of whom were injured previous to the Cheboygan game. Hudson tore several ligaments in his right thigh and while doctors are of the opinion that he will be able to play Saturday, Coach Cook will probably take no chances of having him out for the season.

LITTLE GIANTS PLAY SATURDAY

Rock Eleven to Clash in Opener With Escanaba Reserves

Rock, Mich., Sept. 17 (Special)—The 1930 edition of the Rock "Little Giant" football outfit will make its initial appearance of the season Saturday in its tilt with the Esky Reserve eleven in a preliminary to the Escanaba-Manistique headliner at the Escanaba Athletic Field.

After two weeks of intensive drilling and hard practice, the prospects of another winning team are just as dim as they were on the opening day. In fact, the team seems a little worse off by the loss of two players, who were being counted on heavily to hold down the line positions. As things shape up now, Coach Weingartner is "blessed" with a squad of 19 players, 12 of whom are experiencing their first swing at organized football. Of the seven other candidates, three were regulars last year and four were substitutes with limited action in several of the games.

However, no matter what the outcome of the game will be, Coach Weingartner knows he will have a typical Little Giant outfit on the field Saturday and that means that they don't stop playing until the final whistle. What they lack in weight and experience, they make up in spirit and determination and they hope to keep up Rock's remarkable winning record of the past two seasons.

The probable lineup in the Reserve game follows:

Quarterback, Arne Johnson; Halfbacks, S. Rabideau and W. Salminen; Fullback, K. Kaukola; Ends, Arthur Johnson and A. Granlund; Tackles, Arnold Sayen and Albert Sayen; Guards, H. Norman and J. Connors; Center, J. McCracken. Subs: R. Carlson, L. Viitala, N. Sjoland, W. Maki, G. Larson, Eino and Edward Kaminen and V. Kaukola.

Urban Faber Hurls Chicago to Victory

Chicago, Sept. 17 (AP)—Urban Faber let the Athletics down with just six hits this afternoon, and despite the errors by his mates, the Hose won the third game of the series by the score of 4 to 2. Ed Rommell was nicked for 12 blows, four of them being clustered in the fourth frame to give the Sox a victory. Hits by Reynolds Jolley, Cissell and Kamm figured in the scoring, along with an error by Mickey Cochrane that allowed a run to score. Cissell made a great running catch of a pop fly in the eighth to save Faber a lot of trouble.

COURT SETTING SPEED RECORD

Criminal Cases Finished; Large Group Awaits Sentencing

The circuit court term now in session at Escanaba seems likely to establish a new speed record in disposing of criminal cases. A dismissal on motion of the prosecution ended the last criminal case listed on the calendar for jury trial yesterday afternoon, and now all that remains is the issuing of sentences, which has been scheduled for Saturday morning by Judge Frank A. Bell. Some 40 criminal cases have been disposed of at the term.

Two charges against Stanley Ohalek of Bark River, one for a prohibition violation and one for arson, were removed from the jury trial list when Ohalek changed his plea from not guilty to guilty. A bastardy charge against Leo Lucia was dismissed after testimony was taken showing no grounds for criminal action on the part of the people.

A law case, Stanley M. Matthews vs. James R. Andrews, was started for the afternoon session Wednesday, and after the jury had been selected all other jurors were dismissed until 9:30 today. Jurors selected in the latter case were: John Fagan, Morgan Rivers, Adam Franklin, Henry Peterson, Mary Kelly, Carrie Dahlberg, Andrew G. Olson, Robert Rogers, Joseph Seymour, Alfred Dahl, Andrew Magnusson and Andrew J. Hughes. Attorney H. J. Rushton represented the defendant, and Attorney Matthews was aided by Attorney George Barstow of Menominee. The suit involved a note for $5,000.

FORD'S FUEL YARD

Mrs. M. Doyle Laid to Rest

Impressive were he final rites conducted Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at St. Patrick's church for Mrs. Mathilda Doyle, 1412 South Second Avenue, estimable pioneer resident, who died Sunday evening at the home of her son-in-law and daughter Mrs. Robert C. Pryal, 206 North Fourteenth street, after an illness of several years.

Rev. Fr. James Corcoran, pastor of St. Patrick's church at Hancock, nephew of Mrs. Doyle was celebrant at the solemn requiem high mass, Rev. Fr. John Mockler, pastor of the parish, was deacon and Rev. Fr. Gerald Harrington, assistant pastor, was sub-deacon.

The choir sang the requiem with Mrs. George Casey singing two solos "Ave Maria" by Rosewig and as the mourners left the edifice Mrs. Casey sang "On This Day O Beautiful Mother".

Father Corcoran in a few well chosen words told the large number of relatives and friends who had gathered at the church, that Mrs. Doyle, was present at his birth and had taken care of his mother, Mrs. Anna Corcoran, and that it was fate that decreed that the little baby for whom she cared at his birth would be the celebrant at her requiem.

The casket was borne by five nephews of the decedent, John and Paul Novack, Lawrence, Edward and Joseph Corcoran and a former neighbor G. Elmer McDermot.

Those from away who were summoned to this city were Dr. and Mrs. Wm. D. Schafer of Portmouth, Ohio, Mrs. Schafer being the former Miss Mary Doyle, Mrs. John MacKenzie of Oak Park, Ill., formerly Miss Grace Doyle and Herman Heine of Milwaukee, brother of Mrs. Doyle.

The body was reverently consigned to the grave in the family plat in St. Joseph's cemetery where her husband and a daughter were buried several years ago.

Election is Over

The official tally of the County Board of Canvassers shows Elmer Swanson, to be nominated to the office of Sheriff, by a majority and I extend my congratulations.

I put up a clean, open and above board campaign, for the office of sheriff, and am taking my defeat, as a gentleman.

Rumors have it, that I am going to run on "slips" at the November election, and I want to inform my friends, that after careful and thoughtful consideration, I have decided not to be a candidate.

I gratefully appreciate the support my friends have given me, and trust they will agree with me, in the position, I have taken.

Sincerely yours,

CORN HUSKING BEE, FAYETTE

Results of Experiments on Martin Birk Farm To Be Shown

An inspection of the experimental corn growing plot on the Martin Birk farm in Fayette will be made by Delta county farmers and business men this morning.

A feature of the gathering will be a corn husking bee, in which business men will compete with the farmers. The program will begin at 9 a. m. and will be concluded at noon.

Impromptu talks on various phases of corn raising will be given by County Agent Joseph E. Turner, Claude Ebling, agricultural agent of the Soo Line railway, and Jens Uhrenholdt, Minneapolis, potato development agent of the Soo Line.

The test plot occupies almost an acre of ground on the Birk farm. Twenty-five strains of corn, which are being sold as suitable for growing in the upper peninsula, were planted to determine which is best adapted to climatic and soil conditions in this region. Every other row in the plot is planted in with Wisconsin No. 25 corn so as to compare the results obtained by the various strains.

The names of the varieties and strains of corn will be placarded on the ends of each row for the information of the visitors who inspect the plot. Results obtained from each strain will be tabulated, and the seed of the ten best strains will be planted next year to determine which are most suitable.

The following strains are planted in the plot:

Golden Glow, Wisconsin grown; Wisconsin No. 8, Wisconsin grown; Minnesota No. 13, Wisconsin grown; Northwestern Dent, Wisconsin grown; Golden Glow, Nebraska grown; Minnesota No. 13, Nebraska grown; Wisconsin No. 8, Nebraska grown; Northwestern Dent, Nebraska grown; Wisconsin No. 25, Nebraska grown; Golden Glow, Minnesota grown; Wisconsin No. 8, Minnesota grown; Minnesota No. 13, Minnesota grown; Northwestern Dent, Minnesota grown; Triumph Flint, Minnesota grown; Extra Early, Rustley Paynes, Minnesota grown; Minnesota No. 13, Sterling Hybrid, Minnesota grown; Extra Early, Northwestern Dent, Wisconsin No. 25, crossed with Golden Chippewa; Wisconsin No. 25, crossed with White Flint; Colden Chippewa, Wisconsin No. 25, Wisconsin grown; Minnesota No. 13, home grown; and variety of corn grown in peninsula for several years.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT

A new cinema celebrity has arrived. Climaxing a promising screen career, Canstance Bennett achieves so signal a triumph with her remarkable performance of Ellen in "Common Clay," the Fox movietone feature at the Delft Theatre that she proves her right to be listed among the very foremost of film artists.

With a role that calls for equal emotional force and delicate repression, Miss Bennett virtually lives the part and endows it with sincerity and tenderness. Her obstacles and her sorrows and her helpless buffetings by circumstances beyond her control, as well as her final regaining of some of the happiness she has been so long denied, are registered with extraordinary skill.

Merchants Will Stage Elaborate Fall Opening Friday and Saturday

WINDOW SHOW THIS EVENING

H. S. Band Parade to Announce Event at 7 P. M.

Fall fashions in men's and women's wearing apparel will be shown for the first time in the colorful window displays of Escanaba stores this evening, marking the opening of a two-day autumn style show. The formal fall opening is being sponsored by the retail merchants' committee of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce.

Display windows, which have been hidden from the public's gaze while decorators have been arranging attractive exhibits of stylish clothing, will be opened at 7 o'clock this evening. The Escanaba high school band will parade the street at that time to announce the signal event in the retail merchandising history of this city.

No goods will be placed on sale this evening, but on Friday the merchandise will be available to the public. Those who want to take advantage of a wide range of selections are urged to shop early.

Department stores, women's ready-to-wear and men's haberdashery shops of Escanaba have secured their full lines of fall merchandise, and are able to offer the buying public the latest styles and best quality of goods that can be found anywhere in the country. Some decided departures in women's apparel have been decreed by Dame Fashion this season, but reports from the larger cities indicate that these changes are being enthusiastically welcomed by feminine wearers. Although the styles for men and boys have not undergone much change, the stores are offering complete lines of clothing, rich in quality and attractive in appearance.

Two Leathers Combined in Season's New Footwear

First-aids to those climbing the ladder of success are the new autumn shoes. Left, top: Sleek and graceful is a dressmaker ensemble of strap sandals and the new pouch envelop purse of a rich red suede, with kid pipings and pearl luster trim, in ruby tones. Bottom: A new blue buckskin oxford has blue and white kid braid trim and the high-low heel. Center: A brown baby python and suede pump has a saddle that laces shut with two eyelets and silk laces, like an oxford. Right: For wear with green outfits, a rich green suede has a lizard tip and a buckle made of suede and lizard.

Woman Chosen to Direct Pageant

Asheville, N. C., (AP)—A woman, born in the shadow of Kings mountain, has been chosen to direct the mammoth historic sesqui-centennial celebration on the famous battle ground October 7.

She is Laura Plonk, of Asheville, whose work in organizing pageants has attracted wide attention.

The pageant will depict the history of the Revolutionary period, beginning with the Boston tea party.

FLOWER ESSENCES

Flower essences are taking the place of the exotic scents that have been so popular with perfume-makers for the last few years.

The Well-Dressed Man Is Observing Ensemble Idea

Because men are becoming more clothes-conscious with the approach of each season, the ensemble theme is becoming as important to their wardrobes as to those of the most fastidious women. And the new styles give plenty of leeway for self-expression this fall. Men, as well as the fairer sex, therefore, will be interested in Escanaba's opening tomorrow and Saturday, which will be preceded by the Fall Fashion window display program tonight.

So far as color is concerned, brown is taking the lead, in a variety of shades, ranging from cinnamon to purplish chocolate. There are new grays, too, with bluish and green castes, and others favoring fancy pencil stripe effects of a reddish weave. Navy continues in popularity as a practical business suit color, and the oxfords and black fabrics are relegated to the mature, extremely conservative type of man.

Blue collar-attached shirts, always a favorite with particular men, promise to be more popular than ever for autumn because blue suits are to be so generally worn. And a pleasant variation from the solid color shirts are those in blue stripes with white. Another shirt that enjoyed a wide vogue several years back and now seems due for a revival is the button-down collar-attached shirt in oxford. The white broadcloth, as always, retains its popularity.

Small Figures in Ties.

What's your tie preference—stripes or small figures? Both will be worn but with small well-spaced figures in the lead. And a few plain colors that look best with solid color shirts ought to be on every man's tie rack.

For wear with blue suits, blue and wine red ties are in order, with green coming into prominence with the fashion for brown and oxford gray clothes.

Neckties are going in for stripes in a thousand and one color combinations; cluster stripes; regimental stripes; ladder stripes; plaids; and ribbon stripes in a satin thread. The small all-over pattern is a favorite with young men, and the light foulard with a contrasting design may be worn by them all year round. Solid color ties of flat crepe are always correct, and are being shown in many new shades of red, blue, and many greens, suitable to the new suit fabrics.

Socks should always be chosen to match the tie, and there are a great many fancy new lisles, silks, and silk-and-wool mixtures. Clocks are gaining in prominence, and are far better looking than vividly patterned all-over designs, unless these are chosen for a purely sport outfit.

New Headgear.

Hats follow all the new suit and topcoat colors in the brown and gray ranges, and the narrow snap brim is always a "best seller." The welt-edge brim hat in semi-homburg style is a close second. The bound, rolled brim hat is best suited to a tall, broad shouldered man, whose build permits him to carry off unusual styles.

Two Women Help Hunt White Rhino

Pittsburgh (AP)—Two women will hunt white rhino in Africa this winter with their husbands.

Just back from a trip of exploration in Africa, Rudyerd Boulton, of Carnegie Museum here, and his wife, Laura, were induced by Ralph Pulitzer, New York newspaper publisher, to return to hunt for a white rhinoceros and for Africa's most elusive animal, the giant sable.

FITTED BANDEAU

An elaborate evening slip has a fitted bandeau of lace and deep lace godets which give a circular movement to an otherwise straight hemline.

NATURAL AID TO CHIC

Hats continue to let the forehead show but now it is permissible to display a lock or two of hair in order to soften the face.

Lingerie Blouses Smart for Autumn

Paris (AP)—Lingerie blouses are going right on being chic throughout the autumn and winter months. Dozens of new models are being turned out.

But whereas most of the summer blouses were sleeveless the autumn crop has long sleeves.

Fine narrow lace and much hand tucking continue to trim the wash blouses.

ELBOW FLOUNCES

One of the new coats for winter has an elbow flounce of shaved caracul, about six inches deep. The collar is of the same fur.

NEW MONOGRAMS.

Monograms are au fait right now. For hat clips, the modernistic monogram, worked out in jewels, is new and adds beauty.

INDEPENDENT STYLES.

The coat and dress of the fall ensembles will be distinctly independent of each other in both cut, color and fabric.

Book Survey

In "The Real War: 1914 to 1918," Captain B. H. Liddell Hart puts the strategy of the various World War campaigns under a microscope and makes a series of expert diagnoses; and the 500 pages in which he sets down his verdicts made a book that is both supremely interesting and terribly, almost unbearably, dismaying.

For Captain Liddell Hart—one of England's foremost military critics, by the way—finds that the whole war was a gloomy succession of blunders, made by both sides with clumsy impartiality and paid for by millions on millions of lives. Historic legends and national heroes come crashing under his penetrating scrutiny. He finds feet of clay in all the war-time idols. His book explains not so much who won the war as who lost it.

He finds, for instance, that Hindenburg was a figurehead and that Ludendorff owed his "greatness" chiefly to an abscure staff colonel, Hoffman—"the nearest approach to a military genius that the war produced." Ludendorff left Hoffman behind when he took command on the western front, and left his recipe for success behind with him.

Joffre appears as an opinionated blunderer. Foch shows up to bad advantage until the summer of 1918. Sir Douglas Haig appears responsible for some of the most costly errors in British military history. Sir John French shines in an even less favorable light. Falkenhayn shrinks to diminutive proportions. Pershing gets off more easily, though not without criticism. Hunter Liggett is called the best American general ,and Petain gets what glory the writer is willing to give the French.

And the battles themselves. Only by making a series of unbelievable blunders did the Germans avoid winning the war in 1914; yet, by the same token, the allies matched blunder for blunder, or they would have turned the retreat from the Marne into allied triumph. Russia piled mistake on mistake until revolution and defeat became inevitable. The Gallipoli campaign should have won the war in 1915, but was bungled almost beyond credence. The Germans failed utterly to exploit their use of poison gas at Ypres, and the British returned the compliment by fumbling the opportunity their tanks gave them. The Somme offensive was a ghastly, fore-doomed failure. Ludendorff's "big push" in the spring of 1918 should have won had not its various developments surprised Ludendorff even more than they surprised the allies.

And so it goes: fearfully dismaying stuff, when you recall the price that was paid for these mistakes. Captain Liddell Hart's book ought to make better pacifist propaganda than a dozen feverish war novels. I think it is a book you cannot afford to miss. It is an Atlantic Monthly Press Publication issued by Little, Brown and Co., and sells at $4. Buy it.

True But Gruesome.

"The Wreck of the Dumaru," by Lowell Thomas, is just about the most gruesome, horrifying thriller of the year. It tells what happened to a boatload of sailors whose steamer exploded in mid-Pacific in 1918 and who drifted in an open boat all the way from Guam to the Philippines, taking 24 days for the trip and meeting adventures that make ordinary tales of big doings at sea look mild as milk.

There were 32 men in this lifeboat when the trip started, and 14 when it reached its goal. The 14 who survived were alive only because they had eaten two of the men who died . . . Yes, that's the kind of book it is.

I hasten to add that it's a true story. Mr. Thomas found one of the survivors and got the whole story from him. It is, as I say, a humdinger; one of the most harrowing but interesting tales I have ever read.

The publisher is Doubleday, Dorand and Co. The price is $2.50.

First Rate Story.

When Thames Williamson wrote "Hunky" he demonstrated a profound understanding of the souls of those inarticulate, clod-like mortals who occupy the bottommost rungs on the ladder of civilization. His newest book, "The Earth Told Me," is an even better attempt along the same line.

"The Earth Told Me," has three Eskimos of northwestern Alaska for its central characters. Mr. Williamson presents a stone-age variation of the eternal triangle, and makes a very fine book out of it. His skill in outlining the emotions, desires, ambitions and general mental processes of these primitive folk is amazing. In addition, his literary style is thoroughly suited to his subject matter.

The book is one of Simon and Schuster's paper-backed dollar publications.

Bungled Attack.

"Goodbye to Western Culture," by Norman Douglas, is woefully thin stuff. Mr. Douglas seems to have read "Mother India" and to have been extremely irritated by it; this book is by way of being a series of footnotes in which he attempts to prove that India, taken by and large, is about as nice a place to live as modern Europe.

Mr. Douglas matches each attack on Indian civilization with a corresponding attack on European civilization. In some cases he does a very neat job, and many of his comments are very much to the point; but the spleen that possesses him is too much for him. His book breaks down and misses its point because of his eagerness to make mountains out of molehills. When he praises India because one can get such fine servants there and complaints of occidental culture because people will celebrate golden wedding anniversaries he is simply becoming rather grotesque.

The book is published, for some reason, by Harpers, and costs $3.

Fine Array of All That is Smart and New Ready for Escanaba's Fall Opening

Stores and Shops Filled With Lovely Creations for Women, Best of Autumn Styles for Men

BY AMY BOLGER

If ever you are going to find shopping an excursion of pleasurable surprises which preclude even the remotest possibility of its being a task, it is this fall. And this means shopping for everyone, for the man of the house, his next in line of descent and the youngsters, as well as for Mrs. and Miss Shopper, who enjoy it anyway.

You are going to agree that styles have never been so smart, so utterly charming, speaking of women's fashions just now, or so satisfying in every detail of line or material.

And after this evening's Fall Fashion window show, when you visit Escanaba's stores and shops, everyone of them ready with the finest the markets offer, on the Fall Opening days Friday and Saturday you are going to find that attractive windows are only a hint of what is really on hand for your selection.

Shopping for shoes? One shop has two models that you are certain to like. There is a brown ring lizard three eyelet tie style with two tone trim in autumn shades of brown, and cuban heel. And a black kid pump of dull satin finish with silver grey trim, either Spanish or French heel. In men's wear, this shop favors the black oxford with narrower custom toe, and perforated wing tip.

While we are talking of men's clothing, one men's clothing department is showing the new fall suits in browns and blues, attractive hard finish worsted, with peak lapels and the new close fitting lines. This same department has new narrow roll brim hats in shades of faun and greys.

The new autogart socks are in this store, too. No garter necessary, just a snug elastic band which fits neatly over the calf of the leg. These are in the good shades with small pin stripes. White broadcloth shirts are the popular thing here, the point of collars in the fall models a trifle longer.

In another department of this store is the smartest purse imaginable, of jade green felt, finished with green enamel clapse, with a metal chain. Costume jewelry includes the new dinner rings with large stones to match every costume, and the new necklaces, which are longer and more colorful.

For the clever lady who does a bit of dress-making of her own, or who likes to have it done for her, the travel prints in blues, greys, wines and greens are fascinating, and transparent velvets are shown in every shade desirable.

If you like velvet and you like brown, you will find them combined in an attractive dress of an autumn shade of chiffon velvet, in the popular jacket effect, with imported lace collar and cuffs.

Arrayed in all the colors of a lovely flower garden are formals shown here for the Miss who is leaving for school, and in advance of the important winter parties. There are in heavy lustrous satin, of princess line with the new draped neckline simply made, the beauty of material requiring simplicity, and they are pale and deep pink, nile green, orchid, peach, and maize. Another formal is of black lace, a lace coat completing the ensemble which makes it suitable for afternoon as well as evening wear.

Coats are smart and practical, too in this store. There is one of black and white imported mixture with either black caracul or racoon collar and cuff sets. An attractive model is the new green with grey krimmer trim, a shawl collar and deep cuffs.

As for lingerie, you are going to be delighted. You will find complete sets, gown, coat, and combination brassiere and stepins in egg shell satin, or in deep pink georgette, all finished with imported lace.

Are you remodeling or dressing up your rooms this fall? There is a variety of beautiful cretonnes in new patterns, which blend with any color scheme you have in mind. One in particular has blue, green and blue-violet which blend to give a lovely effect with small amounts of yellow and rose. Another has the semblance of the crewel embroidery which is so popular th's fall.

In a women's shop you will see a charming gown of Manilla brown chiffon, with high shoulder cape finished with three rows of fagotting. The skirt of graceful folds of chiffon is of uneven hemline. In this shop three piece knitted suits are found popular for school, sport and office wear. They are in new fall shades, wine, green, browns, and in black and they are smart as well as serviceable. Another charming dress is of black and white, the popular combination, heavy crepe in material, with Eton jacket, white vest and collar and cuffs finished with black and white suttache and glass buttons.

A jewelry store is showing the new costume mesh bags which are lovely and a variety of the newest watch bands. Pearls in one, two or three necklaces with bracelets to match, are extremely smart. A novelty which attracts the feminine eye is a highly colored compact with lipstick attached, all held with a little chain in which the color of the compact is repeated. This, by the way, is of a small neat shape. Here, too, you will find the most attractive new dinner rings, in the colorful stones, emerada, skinnel, amethest, rose zercon and white crystal.

Have you seen the new lamps, which have both indirect lighting and the three candelabra lights? A furniture store has a model with brass base, lacquer finish and a parchment shade. And did you ever wish someone, sometime, would invent some way whereby the baby might be taken for a ride in his stroller, and then bundled into a car, if occasion arose, carriage and all? It is here, in this store, a collapsible carriage. An attractive stroller, it may be folded up and placed in the car, and what more, its side attachments may be released forming as nice a cradle as you could want. And there is no intricate mechanism to operate. In fact, it is so simple that you wonder why no one ever thought of it before.

In another store you are going to find the loveliest selection of gowns, coats, hats, and costume complements, shoes, hosiery, bag and gloves, that you have ever seen. There is a lovely black gown of canton crepe with the vest of the new wool lace. The Russian influence is seen in a model of Morocco brown, which has the smoke metalic belt, dolman sleeves with metallic buttons and the Callot or soft draped neckline. Another extremely smart model is of English crepe wool with collar and cuffs of white pique, in peplum jacket fashion with gaylak trim. A black canton with gaylak trim is attractive and a lovely gown is of rich brown chiffon with all metal embroidery, a velvet belt and bow and a smart shoulder cape.

In coats there is the rich Velour de Nord, a heavy velvet material, black with fitch trim. A dress coat is of Kashmiritta, a fine crepe finished broadcloth, with a large beaver collar and cuff set. An English green broadcloth has collar and cuff sets of Kolinsky. And you never saw anything smarter or more practical for winter than the new Jacquette sets, short jacket, muff and matching beret of alpadoe, in parchment shades. A complete outfit of this type has the skirt of suede, a suede beret, and the jacket of Lapak fur is lined with suede.

Hats are lovely models of suede, off the forehead, with the new high and low points, fitting close to the head and high on one side, and extending to a low point on the other. Extremely smart is the black cushion brim with black and white feather bow.

Shoes vary from the black satin finish kid, shown in plain pumps and neat narrow one strap effects with genuine lizard trimming, to the cocoa and leaf browns, happy mediums of color which blend with the darker brown dresses. These have contrasting trims and are in the ever popular pump, strap and three and four eyelet tie styles, the pumps finished with tailored bows. Soft shiny patents are popular in this department, too.

To complete your costume you may select a hand tooled under arm bag which is practical, an ensemble bag of black, brown or English green, or you may wish an extra bag of the richly colored Florentin work. Gloves are all straight pull on styles and pigskin is leading kids in popularity here. Hosiery matches the dress.

A men's department in one of the stores offers much of interest. There is the young man's hat which has a new two inch brim, breaks smartly just over the front with a smart roll to the brim in the rear of the hat. The crown is of medium height and the bow set back from the normal position, giving the hat an all over rakish appearance. Shirts of British striping, smart in London, assure the young man, calling on his lady, that his collar is in perfect order, for they have a celluloid tab in the collar, which makes for neat apearance at all times. These are in hairline stripes. Neckwear is in small figures, and spats are being shown extensively.

Back in another shoe shop is a brown suede of medium long vamp with French heel and leather foxing, one strap and side buckle, and a black moire seamless pump with new French heel and the narrow toe which marks this fall's shoe fashions.

New costume jewelry in one of the jewelry stores includes necklaces of square cut white crystal with chronium filigree chain, the crystal set in tiny brilliants. New rings are beautiful cameos of the new hematite, rings of Emerada, Ceylon sapphires of blue, pink ultralite and white crystal. A necklace to complete the black and white costume is of jet and crystal, cone shaped beads with black and white rondells between them. A new bracelet, a beautiful thing, is of filigree all set with rhinestones.

A children's shop is featuring the new coats of camel hair with helmets to match, for children of all ages. These are in double breasted style, with all wool lining and are in three shades of tan.

A ladies' mat calf gun metal trim pump is being shown in one shoe shop. This is in regent style with spike Louis heel and trim of three tiny bracelet links. This same shop is showing the black moire pump, with its good wearing qualities, in regent style with 18-8 Louis heel.

A black canton gown in one of the large stores has blue trim with embroidery at the neckline, and sleeves, forming cuffs and part of the sleeve to the elbow. The lines are princess with a flounce and irregular hemline.

An extremely smart women's shop is featuring lovely models of black and white. One is black crepe faille, with white inch plaiting at the neckline, petal trimming of white and sleeves of white all pin tucked and finished with black ball buttons. Another black model has the crewel embroidery on its white trim at the neckline and on the sleeves, with godet and flared skirt. A designer's prize frock is of black crepe Elizabeth, neckline piped in rust and corn, with the sleeves em-ablorately embroidered in green, corn flower blue, rust, orange and gold. This gown has a lovely flare and stitched belt. A two piece tailored suit for fall and winter is unusually smart and practical. It is of imported weave, black and white, with tailored skirt and full length coat which may be worn separately. The coat has a beautiful martin collar.

FINE FURNITURE

915 LUDINGTON ST. ESCANABA, MICHIGAN

In another of the smart women's shops is a dress coat of black broadcloth, beautifully tailored. Princess lines, close fitting, designed to follow the figure in strikingly original grace and with a flattering collar and interesting cuffs of genuine Persian lamb. This shop is featuring the three piece wool suit, one model of which is of green, skirt box pleated from a yoke, blouse of egg shell satin and cut away coat with fitted back. A pretty dress is black faille, with cape shoulder, narrow waistline and white collar and cuffs finished in white stitching. New jewelry includes crystals, black and white and new coral with satin finish, many of necklaces with earrings to match, as well as the sports outfit necklace.

A furniture store is displaying a new dining room set of all solid oak, with refractor table, antique style and beautifully carved. A new bedroom suite is of costly wood, with Huva dresser mirror loose hanging which permits the piece to answer as a dresser and as a chest. This is enamel decorated.

Attractive hats in one women's shop include the divorcee of chiffon velvet with elastic braid in front, tied with the smart bow at the back. Another is a close fitting turban of draped velvet and knitted material, marked by hand stitching. This shop is also showing the felts which follow velvets in popularity, nearly all close fitting, some with slight brims and all off the forehead styles.

Did you know about the revival of the laundered collar for men's wear? One shop is featuring the shirt with two separate collars to match, in tans, and is finding it in demand. The return of the laundered collar is cleverly explained by the fact that while the soft shirt and sport clothes harmonized with the departed "flapper" style, the men who accompanies his beautifully gowned lady to the theatre in this day of feminine fashion, must needs look decidedly dressed-up. Overcoats in this shop are of fleeces, fabrics with heavier knap and are in dark shades, greys, blues and browns.

You will find the attractive black and white mixture in a pretty dress coat in another of the large stores, with pointed black collar and cuff set, novelty cuffs and pockets, belt and serviceable crepe lining. In this same store are the favored travel tweeds and light wool tweeds in navy, or black with jacket effect pleated skirt and contrasting collar and cuffs.

You will find charm in the dresses of another of the smart women's shops. One is of new brown canton crepe with mutton leg sleeve which has imported lace forming the cuff and a part of the sleeve puff, tight hip line over skirt effect and small belt. In this shop is a lovely dress coat of black tricoline which is so popular, caracul trimmed with the new double sleeve finished with a band of fur, a shawl collar, semi-fitted and with a belt or without as you prefer.

In one of the larger shoe stores is a smart shoe of brown kid, beautifully fashioned, strap with Almora kid trimming, an overlay of genuine brown lizard and high French heel. This store is showing with the shoe the new grenadine crepe hosiery a twist with the new dull finish in all new shades.

And concluding this particular shopping expedition, wait, all of you men, until you see this ensemble selected in one of the men's shops. First of all a suit of Burgundy brown, two button, peaked lapel model, closely fitting to the waist and over the hips with square cut shoulders giving the effect of width at the shoulders with downward tapering lines, trousers in keeping with the general line of the coat, somewhat narrower than during the past two or three seasons. With this is a madras shirt of a light shade of green with small irregular figure in brown, the collar a little longer pointed with semi-rigid points. The hat is a snap brim of Burgundy brown with unusually high crown and narrow brim. Add Burgundy brown socks with green clocking, oxfords medium dark with narrow toe and English last of imported Scotch grain, and a tie, of plain color full green crepe, and—well there you are.

New Choker Beads Big as Tea Balls

Paris, (AP)—Clothes for the air travelers are shown in some of the haute couture houses among models for winter.

One outstanding flying costume is a dark green tweed with long trouser-skirted dress and finger length tweed jacket. Helmet and gloves of green duvetyn go with the costume.

STANDING COWL.

A black flat crepe frock has a very new collar, a cowl collar of shell pink taffeta which comes nearer the throat than most cowl collars and stands up in a dignified manner.

Daytime Coats Offer Variety Of Smart Style

While not one of the first items of the fall and winter wardrobe to be selected, the coat for general daytime wear is surely one of the most important. For this reason much interest is being manifested in the coat displays in the fall opening, Friday and Saturday, with tonight's window fashion show ushering the two-day event. And the well-dressed woman exercises great care in the selection of a coat because it must usually be of a type and color that may be successfully worn with a variety of dresses and hats. For these reasons one who is well acquainted with the fashion features of the new fall coats will in all probability make the smartest and wisest choice.

The coat with the bolero back and the one featuring the dolman sleeve are of some fashion significance, but there are three other types of much wider appeal. The molded line which accents the normal waistline slightly and flares from the hips; the coat with the bloused back which usually ties in front; and the Vionnet coat which was smart last year and is again very good. This coat which also fits the figure slightly, may be recognized by its side closing.

Surely this interesting variety of types offers a wide range of choice, but the same cannot be said when we come to the questions of color and fabric. For, like most smart women, you will undoubtedly decide upon either a black or brown coat of suede-finished broadcloth. "Kashmirita" cloth, for instance, which is so beautifully soft that it admits of the most intricate seaming. Or "Oriola" cloth which is especially good looking in a smart "Friar Brown." Or you may also choose a coat of Oriola or some other suede-like fabric in green or red and still be decidedly in the fashion picture.

Double Sleeves Important

And, of course, your new coat will be fur trimmed. With Persian lamb or beaver or maybe with wolf, mink or fox if you choose a coat of the more formal type. And the way these furs are manipulated is an outstanding feature of fall coats. The double cuff with a tight fur cuff at the wrist and the upper part mode to give a bell effect is very fashionable.

FUR BOWS

A beige frock for early fall has a round collar and bow brim of brown shaved caracul. The beige hat topping it has a flat bow trim of the caracul.

New hats are likely to have one side revealing, one side concealing the face. The rolled double-brim is the one to have, if you like brims.

Pretty Play Frocks For Parties

When you come home from work all hot and tired, there is nothing quite so refreshing as a change to gay summer clothes like those shown here

by Julia

I. a bertha collar and full skirt finished in petal scallops add a quaint charm to this embroidered organdy which uses a blue thread against white.

II. this coat and frock of soft printed silk discover new formality in a blocked carnation pattern.

III. for the summer dance this flowered chiffon gown chooses a wrap of gold-shot silk material.

MIDSUMMER should find your wardrobe filled with frocks in a party mood.

You hear such a lot about the psychology of clothes. Why not apply a little of it to yourself? You know that if you come home tired and wonder just why the weather is so hot and your life so drear, the mere sight of a gay little printed chiffon hanging in your closet is apt to give your spirit just a little lilt! Therefore, the more party-like your wardrobe, the more lilting your spirit. It is a simple thing, just like that!

MOREOVER, summer time is naturally visiting time. You are apt to have a school friend, a boy friend, or some friend's friend or cousin call you up for lunch, tea, or a quiet dinner in a cool spot. You should have some kind of a sweet outfit to wear so that you can go right from work looking as if you had just dressed for the social occasion.

Since the majority of girls work today, the trick is not to bemoan the fact that you do, but to use your head to keep yourself looking as smart as if you didn't.

In assembling this wardrobe that has a party-mood, I have outlined the types of social events you are most likely to have included in your summer's program.

I. THIS is a summer of garden parties. If you have only a two-by-four garden, even, it is a year to hang out pretty lanterns and have a gala party under the stars.

Or you may choose to have a late afternoon party, under the last rays of the dying sun. For either, do indulge in a lovely organdie frock, if you can. Nothing is more partified or cooler. Nothing is more youthful or devastatingly lovely.

An embroidered organdie which is a treasure, is embroidered in allover design to give a rich effect that is perfect. It is white, with a blue thread running lightly over it in a lacy effect. The bertha collar and the tiny "dust-ruffle" edge of the full, long skirt, are finished in a fascinating treatment of petal scallops. The white organdie sash that ties in a bow on one side has a wide edging of blue. With this delectable frock, embroidered crepe de chine slippers are in the same blue and white tones, bound with blue kid.

II. EQUALLY important is the frock for the party luncheon or the afternoon tea at some garden spot, in an exclusive tea room, or club. Since you cannot go home and dress, by all means have one very smart little silk suit that is conservative enough to be perfect for work and chic enough to be perfect for play.

I suggest a frock coat, with light touches and a flower and hat, gloves, shoes and bag to complete it. Quite ideal for this luncheon frock, shall we call it, is a frock and coat of printed silk in soft green, gold and pink on a black background, using a carnation pattern for the print. This spaced floral design has a formality about it that a fine allover design utterly lacks

The frock has a tight hipline, with circular skirt below and a bloused bodice above. The round collar and the flaring cuffs at the bottom of long, tight sleeves, are novel, having several layers of black and gold crepe de chine half-way round, with bound edges the other half-way. The neck ruffles circle around the front, ending just above a large artificial flower worn squarely in the middle of the front.

The coat has three-quarters sleeves that flare, with the frock's sleeves protruding. The hat is roughish lace straw in natural tone, trimmed with a bow of black. Gloves and shoes can be parchment colored or black, or even pink or green.

III. OF course, we must include a sweet dance frock. If possible, make it a frock and coat to match or contrast. Everybody is wearing little matching coats or capes and you will enjoy yourself thrice as much if you are perfectly outfitted.

For the summer dance, chiffon is the coolest looking and coolest feeling thing you can have. A little printed chiffon, coral, blue and green on a white background, has a short cape, that fastens around the waist, in a heavier silk in the same printed design.

The frock has a scalloped hem and is trimmed with flowers cut from the dress and finished. The little cape has a cushion collar in the back.

IV. IF you are sophisticated or if you are very young and yet apt to be invited to a formal dinner, or musicale, or reception this summer, there is an entirely new type of gown to be had that will lend you the distinction you crave.

It is sheer black net, with white organdie appliqued on it in an allover design of conventional floral motif. The black net alone fashions the top of the bodice, and the last two inches of the long, even length gown. The peplum is also edged in black net. This gown is cut on classic lines of almost austere beauty and yet you will find that its very richness is heightened by this restraint.

V. YOU must have a swell bathing outfit, for no summer is a good summer without beach parties or swimming pool parties.

If you are the kind of girl who has a real rendezvous with Neptune, instead of just sitting on the sidelines watching others swim, I suggest a utilitarian swimming suit, but do warn you to get a good-looking one.

A new-style swimming suit is made of white and marine blue jersey. There is a one-piece annette over which slips the little skirt of blue and white striped jersey.

To complete this have a nifty-looking beach coat, bag and robe in a gay yellow terry cloth, with big splashing fish appliqued on in the blue of your suit. Rubber bathing slippers and a rubber beret can be white or yellow or blue, as you wish.

IV. sheer black net achieves a smart sophistication with this evening gown which is appliqued in white organdy.

V. marine blue and white jersey swimming suit with detachable skirt . . . cape, bag and beret are of yellow terry cloth.

New Lingerie Is In Keeping With Fall Silhouette

The new dresses are undeniably designed to make you look your loveliest but they do ask for consideration so far as underwear is concerned. Bunchy elastics and heavy pleats won't give a smooth silhouette under a moulded Princess frock, and you defeat the purpose of the new skirts if you wear a knee-length slip under an ankle-length frock of chiffon.

So you'll want to get new lingerie if you haven't yet—and all the novel ideas to be presented at the fall opening, Friday and Saturday, which is heralded by tonight's window fashion show, are so dainty and lovely, that you can't help but make an appropriate choice. There are lovely new things for sports, for dress, and for evening wear—chemises, step-ins, knickers, bloomers, combination sets—slips—all distinctively adapted to each particular type of costume.

For sports, the simplest type of underwear is the most appropriate and comfortable. The most popular outfit consists of knickers made on a fitted yoke and worn with a bandeau of matching silk. The most that is permitted for trimming is simple tucking—flat appliques of contrasting color, and seaming that gives the fitted lines so necessary to the slim silhouette.

For more formal afternoon wear, you're allowed free reign to indulge your love of the ornate and the combination garment is favored to the separate vest and step-in. Lace incrustations in deep ecru, and in gray-beige casts are used in narrow or wide effects, with yokes intricately fitted and deep borders. The popular colors for fall underwear are pale apricot, salmon, green, white, and beige with a golden cast. Slips, too, are elaborate, and are snugly fitted and only flared from the knee downward, to conform with the dresses. In these garments the same colors are favored as for the underwear. Black and dark brown slips will be worn considerably, too, under dresses of the same colors.

Flat Lace.

Lingerie for evening is fast falling away to little other than a yoke of beautiful, flat lace, and a wisp of silk moulded to the body. Backs are out—straps are invisible, and instead of the full-length garment of crepe, wide lace borders are used from fingertip-length to knee.

GUIDING YOUR CHILD

Should a mother have any interests outside her family?

Yes, she should.

It seems superlative to say so in this age when a woman now is looked upon as a human being and not as a machine, and yet quite recently I heard a man make a sarcastic remark because his wife wanted to go to an afternoon party and have a high school girl come in and take care of the children.

Let me explain that this woman is no gadabout, but she has a nice circle of friends whom she enjoys occasionally.

Her husband, too, I must admit, seems like a normal sensible person, who did not impress me as either a slave-driver or a jailer in the slightest sense of the word. He is a good provider, too, but he has his little economies, I understand.

How He Got That Way

However, the dollar for the girl to ome in and look after the children was not the reason for his objection.

His wife told me later, with a certain cheeriness that I am sure she did not feel, that he'd always been that way. He had the old-fashioned idea that when a woman had a family of children to look after, she ought to stay at home. That was the job, the same as a man's job was with his business.

Putting it that way there is just enough truth almost to floor any argument to the contrary. Because housekeeping and child care is the first and realest business of a mother.

But I wonder how long this man would feel the way he does about his wife having a little recreation during the day if he were to change places with her for a week. We'll put it a little stronger and say a month, for the monotony and wear of just such work as she is doing owes some of its breaking power to the pull of time.

Couldn't Stand Strain

I rather imagine not only that he'd be calling for succor but that he'd be throwing up his hands and jumping overboard completely. No man was ever born who could stand the nerve strain and emotional exhaustion of the average mother with the average house and average family of children, particularly if she has no help and no chance for a bit of a good time.

Many women stand it. Thousands do—for reasons that cannot be helped.

But it is the most natural thing in the world for a mother to want to get away occasionally and be her very own self for a few hours, and when it is possible, it is inconceivable that her husband should object.

It is only prejudice—a fixed idea on his part that it shouldn't be done. Why, goodness only knows!

Provides Relaxation

This particular man is not socially minded. It is no crime to lack the social urge, but it is also no crime to have it.

Most women have it stronger than men. Then what misery it must be not to be able once in a while to make contact with friendly persons whom they like!

Mothers give out a lot in nervous emotional energy, aside from physical effort, to their families. This spring must be fed or it will dry up.

If they get some inspiration and strength to go on, by seeing their friends now and then, what but good can come of it?

Fall Mode Seen at Meadowbrook

International Meet Reveals Society in Colorful Pageant Of Smartest of Autumn Style

BY BETSY SCHUYLER

New York—The most distinguished sporting crowd of the year, the 45,000 or so who turned out to see the United States polo team trim the Britishers in the International matches at Meadowbrook, was as impressive a spectacle as long Island has ever witnessed.

The great stands, gaily painted robin's-egg blue and white, the Meadowbrook Club colors, looked like huge fields of flowers, so colorful were the frocks donned for the occasion.

Then there was F. Ambrose Clark's coach and four driving his party over, most of the women wearing bright colors. The majority of folks arrived by auto or train, albeit a few did descend from airplanes, proving how modern as well as popular this sport has become.

Lord and Lady Cromwell, arriving Saturday morning on the Aquitania, rushed over to the polo field, Lady Cromwell looking trim in smart English tweeds, with a huge fur collar on her coat, and one of those new shallow crowned turbans.

New Hats Aren't Just for Debbies

It is a mistake to think only the youngest debutante can wear new hats. I defy anyone to look smarter than several of the women did at the games. Mrs. Virginia Fair Vanderbilt was stunning in a ruddy brown and tan velvet chapeau of this type, and so were Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, in a white one with a jeweled clip, and Mrs. Robert McAdoo, in a very shallow white one, topping a figured frock and plain jacket, with much white organdie in the front.

Very summery looking were some of the engaged girls present. Frances Ottley, there with her fiance, William B. Wood, wore a sleeveless pastel jersey frock, with jacket and a black velvet beret. Frances Gilmore, with her fiance, R. Norris Williams 3rd, had on a cute little flaring linen frock, with cap sleeves and a one-inch tuck running horizontally around the waist, just above a narrow leather belt.

Fanny Moore combined jersey and tweed in her rust-colored outfit, the one-piece frock of jersey, the short jacket in tweed.

Corsages and shoulder bouquests were the order of the day in many of the box parties. Mrs. Charles B. Harding and her sister, Priscilla Choate, both wore orchids. Mrs. Harding had a smart little black flat crepe outfit that had one of the new short jackets atop it, with elbow sleeves from under which the frock's sleeves protruded. Priscilla wore a chic directoire coat, in navy blue, over a printed silk frock, with her hat half blue, half white. Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham wore both gardenias and a long, magnificent fur too.

New Furs Complement Individual Mode

Fall furs are nothing if not individual looking and lovely. Mrs. Robert Lawrence wears a lovely neckpiece of a couple of grand sables. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney wore a magnificent silver fox, very long, very grand, over a print frock. Her daughter, Mrs. G. MacCulloch Miller, wore a pair of crown clips, all in rubies and diamonds, one in her beige hat, one at the neck of her frock.

The vogue for wool lace frocks was represented by many smart folks, one particularly gay gold yellow one lighting up a group on a Hispano car. Mrs. T. Markoe Robinson wore one of the prettiest, a rust red frock, fitted, belted, with a rather wide shirt collar, all scalloped, and cute short sleeves. It flared from below the hipline and the lace edge finished the skirt too. Her hat was exactly matching in color, and over her arm she carried a smart lapin sports coat.

Novelty tweeds are the smart ones this autumn. Mrs. C. Perry Beadleston wore a charming version of this style, a horizontally striped weave, with fitted coat and flaring skirt and the coat lined with white jersey, and a white jersey blouse finished in the tweed. Her tweed beret carried a handsome jewelled basket of flowers on one side.

Pigskin Gloves Most Practical For Men's Wear

Correct gloves have always been a sign of fine grooming, and, as will be shown in the fall opening, Friday and Saturday in men's wear, the glove is coming into its own as an item deserving of enough consideration for it to change with the general style trend.

It is interesting to note that the American hog travels across the seas to England, to be made into gloves, and then crosses the sea once more, to be sold to American men. That's fair enough reciprocity on the old economic theory of supply and demand, and we're sure that both countries are getting about equal advantages—England in the fine quality skins that find a market all over the world as gloves—and America in the expert workmanship and attractive styling that England has won its reputation for in man's fashion world.

Durable and Handsome.

The most important thing of all in the pigskin glove is the fact that it wears endlessly, cleans well, and is as masculine looking as any leather could possibly be. There are three popular styles—the first being the sac wrist, which is without any opening at all. The second is the one button fastening, and the third the U-shape opening, sometimes at the side. These pigskin gloves come in the natural tan color, which ranges from a light, yellowish cast, to a deeper, almost true brown tone. The wrist of these gloves are bound in a darker tone of leather, and the seams are invariably on the outside, to give the more masculine suggestion of sturdiness. English glove makers are sponsoring the short glove for men—coming exactly to the wrist—a length about an inch shorter than some gloves have previously been.

Tan Shades Good.

Other popular leathers are chamois and capeskin, and still more practical are the washable gloves, which are now obtainable in low price ranges. These are usually of lambskin, mocha, and gazelle, and are worn in putty (gray cast), light beige, cream (with a yellow caste), and various shades of tan.

Trouser-Skirted Styles for Ai[r]

Paris, (AP)—A recent arrival in costume jewelry circles is the choker collar of pearls like te[nnis] balls.

They are shown by a dressmaker who suggests them for wear with street ensembles of gray and dark blue with small flat astrakhan collars.

The beads ride atop the fur collars with youthful and amusing effect.

WALK-OVER

Lapis

A beautiful shoe of Beige Clair Ring Lizard with applique of Chocolate Brown Calf and Spanish Brown Calf in an original and most attractive pattern. One of the high lights of the fall models. Walk-Over Hosiery to match.

Reptiles

The popularity of reptile leathers continues, and with excellent reason. Reptiles express individuality in almost endless variety. The beauty of each skin and its markings make every model an exclusive art creation. Expertly shaped and cleverly patterned.

'olored Stones, Heavy Settings In New Jewelry

The exotic arrangement of col-'ed stones in heavy settings of old and silver, such as one sees museum collections of antique welry, is characteristic of the stume jewelry to be presented iring the fall opening, Friday id Saturday, following this eve-ing's window fashion show.

And not only is the new jewelry aborate, but in the case of neck-ces they are long. Twenty to irty inches is the rule and it ill be seen that the simplifica-on of dresses through the elim-nation of bows and frills is more ian made up for by the jewelry ne will wear.

The preference being accorded black as a smart costume color reflected in the popularity of lack and white jewelry, one idea eing to set small square and tri-ngular mirrors in a block chok-r. Elaborately carved effects in apis are another popular theme.

Along with the renaissance of ntique jewelry types comes a evival of the vogue for earrings. But these are smartest when worn with matching bracelets.

A decided contrast to jewelry of the ornamental type are pearls on which the fashion sun still ests. During the day and hroughout the evening long strands of natural pearls will be requently seen.

Costume jewelry is getting away from the barbaric influence, and is following the simple, clas-sic lines of the new frocks. Adaptations of Empire and Na-poleonic jewelry, in jade, carne-lian, coral and turquoise, are de-lightfully quaint, and just the thing for the new, low, draped necklines.

For All Occasions.

The four most important stones for the development of the new versions of costume jewelry are: —coral, jade, carnelian and topaz. These stones are even more signi-ficant than synthetic reproduc-tions of the precious stones. They are being set, for the most part, in gold, with enamel and seed pearls used for decoration. Ear-rings, necklaces (the choker seems passe, except for sport wear), bracelets, and in only a few instances, brooches, are made up in matching sets of carved de-signs, some of which are suitable for tailored frocks, some for for-mal afternoon costumes, and some for the most formal evening functions.

Rare Gems Will Soon Sparkle in Capital Society

Washington (AP)—Rare an-tique jewelry and family heir-looms in modern settings will blaze and sparkle from the throats of capital society lead-ers when the social season opens.

Washington, probably more than any other city in the coun-try, boasts a treasure hoard of rubies, diamonds and emeralds which have been handed down from one generation to another.

They have lain in secret cup-boards and tapestried wall safes in Paris, Buenos Aires and Shanghai. They were only taken out on rare occasions until brought to the United States capital by their owners. They belong to members of the diplo-matic corps, many of whom des-cended from old Spanish famil-ies.

Sentiment, superstition and ro-mance cling to the gems. Some are reputed to have been part of pirates' loot, others to have graced the crowns of kings.

But for practical reasons their women owners prefer this season to have their heirlooms in mo-dern setting. A leading Wash-ington jeweler employs a French craftsman whose time is wholly occupied reseting rare old gems.

Four beautiful uncut emeralds which belonged to a woman from South America engrossed his attention the day I visited him in his studio. He had de-signed a pendant with diamond background for the green stones.

Capital society leaders arrayed in full-jeweled splendor on state occasions often wear thousands of dollars' worth of gems.

Cuban Choir Singer Headed for Talkies

Havana (AP)—Two years ago Anna Fitziu, the opera singer, heard Josefina Meca singing in the choir of the Cuban cathedral here.

She liked the girl's voice, and when told Josefina was only 16, persuaded her parents to allow her to come to New York and study.

After two years of training Josefina came back and caused a mild furor when she sang in a local theater.

Now, after she sings in Carne-gie hall, New York, she's headed for Hollywood to sing for the talkies.

Stovepipe Muff Forms New Cuff

Paris (AP)—A stovepipe muff of shaved lamb or broadtail that can be slipped onto the coat sleeve forming a foresleeve is one of the brand new ideas of autumn.

Another innovation is fur lin-ed gauntlet cuffs which can be folded back forming a fur muff with cloth lining.

Muffs are smartest this season when they are crushed instead of plain and flat.

JACKETS REPLACED

Long wraps or coats which blend into the silhouette are re-placing the short jackets which have been the mode this summer.

Black Leading Lovely Array of Fall Colors

The color outlook for fall and winter is black. But the cloud has a silver lining in that black holds first place by virtue of its unquestioned smartness as will be revealed in the fall opening to-morrow and Saturday, following this evening's fall fashion window show. It is the color of a ma-jority of good-looking coats and is equally flattering when used in afternoon frocks of velvet and canton as well as for clever little jersey frocks—these latter usual-ly being relieved by a smart ap-plique of pink, blue or white. And as often as not, the somber blackness of a coat is broken by the color of its fur trimming while the feminizing lingerie touch or use of beading is almost universal on frocks of the semi-dress-up type.

Then next to black comes brown and it makes as many coats as dresses. One of the most inter-esting of the new browns, though not of great importance, is a brown so dark that it looks black and has been christened off-black. The greens come next and one lovely dark shade is creating considerable interest for coats. Last of the major color themes is red, ranging from rich rosy reds to dark maroon.

Minor color notes are struck by white, pale pink, and a very deli-cate watery green for evening wear; and a group of five colors —green with a yellow cast, a henna which is close to burnt orange, another henna much deeper which might be called antique, deep turquoise and ivory —which have been Persian be-cause they are found in old Per-sian because they are found in old Persian pottery and pictures.

There is a sharp distinction be-tween those you'll wear for day-time, and those suited to the eve-ning mode, so we're making a classification that will help you make wise selections.

For Daytime.

Dark green with a bluish cast, are most effective in woolens and crepes.

Negro and chocolate brown are going to run black a close second in popularity this fall.

Burgundy is the red for day-time in wool or silk, and should-n't brighten until dinner-time.

Navy is the blue-ribbon winner in wool and silk, and plain wool coatings, and bright royal is per-mitted for formal afternoon wear.

A strange paradox is the use of light, powder and turquoise blues for sports and evening, but not for usual daytime wear.

Sport outfits are using a great deal of vanilla-beige effectively combined with black or brown.

For Evening.

Nile green is one of the favor-ites of all the Parisian couturiers.

Black is not only flattering, but unfailingly correct.

Daring souls will wear dark brown evening frocks right through the winter.

Ruby and cherry reds in chif-fon make youthful, effective eve-ning gowns for the dark-haired.

Navy blue is unusual and effec-tive for evening.

Royal blue is a favorite for the fair.

Turquoise, cornflower, and powder blues are always youth-ful, and are shown in new shades.

White will continue its summer popularity right through the win-ter, with vividly colored accessor-ies.

Baby pink and baby blue are best suited to the younger set, and are richly lovely in transpar-ent velvet, heavy crepes, or wil-lowy chiffons.

Gold metal cloth will be very popular, and is more striking than silver, though it, too, will be used.

Old-Fashioned Sash Feature Of Smart Paris Mode

Paris (AP)—Old-fashioned sash-es, with loops and splashing rib-bon effects are the debutante's best bet for obtaining that last minute Paris look.

The woman dressmaker who first launched robes de style, precursors of long full skirts, is behind the bigger and brighter sash movement.

Her adaptations of the sash to modern requirements include some eight-inch-wide versions of shirred satin made with double loops in back.

Such girdles, for that's what they ahe, dominate the costume which becomes a mere back-ground of pastel colored or white tulle, taffeta or starched chiffon, for a bright band of crushed satin.

Most dressmakers are content to indicate the approximate waistline with a band or bright velvet ribbon.

The contrasting ribbon belt is much younger and newer than one that matches. Paris goes in for bright colors on white, for turquoise and emerald green on black.

Older women fasten velvet ribbon belts with twin jeweled buckles but the bowknot is new-er and more sprightly.

More than one noted dress-making house has belts of fur on lace, chiffon or velvet eve-ning dresses. A narrow strip of ermine is decidedly new around the waistline of a black frock.
